Govt. OK's Catch-Up Pay Raises

New Order Covers Supervisors, Other Salaried Employes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—The government issued a broad new regulation Wednesday permitting catch-up pay raises to supervisors, foremen and possibly other salaried employes in line with pay boosts granted to production workers.

Joseph D. Cooper, executive director of the salary stabilization board, estimated the regulation could affect some 5,000,000 persons.

Employers may grant the raises without further notice to the salary board, officers said.

"The order will enable employers to pass on to salaried employes the cost-of-living and other increases of a similar nature given to wage earners," Cooper told news men.

Extends Benefits

"It extends to salaried employes in a particular plant or industry the benefits of plant-wide or industry-wide increases approved by the wage board for wage earners."

Officials made it clear, however, that any such raises under the new order are subject to the discretion of the employer. There is nothing obligatory about the regulation. It merely authorizes such increases.

The salary board said the regulation is designed to restore the historic relationship in pay between supervisory employes and the production workers they supervise.

If the production workers have had a pay boost under the Wage Stabilization Board's formula, supervisors in the same plant or industry will not be permitted to receive higher salaries.

In effect, it would mean that the foreman's pay could be hiked as much as 12 per cent to catch up with his production workers if they have received the maximum allowed by the wage board.

Get "First Crack"

Cooper said it is the board's intention to have salaried supervisors and foremen "get the first crack" at any pay increases.

In explanation of the complicated formula, he said an example might be a firm that had given its production workers a 10 per cent wage boost while its supervisors had received only a six per cent increase.

In that case, the firm could grant up to four per cent increases to salaried employes, starting with supervisors and foremen.

Therefore, Cooper said, if the overall payroll had still not been increased by more than the percentage increase paid to production workers, other salaried workers could also get raises.

These "secondary" raises would apply to salaried officer help and other groups not covered by the wage board.

Italian Towns Devastated By Flood Waters

MILAN, Italy, Nov. 22—(AP)—Rain-swollen tributaries sent the raging and still rising Po River on a new rampage of destruction last night.

Hamlets and towns already devastated by the uncontrolled flood waters have faced additional destruction as millions of gallons of muddy waters poured into areas already inundated.

A gap punched into the Ceresole canal banks with explosives yesterday to divert waters from Rovigo, threatened the last communication line between that city and Padua.

In that area more than 200,000 out of 350,000 persons were homeless tonight as their farms and houses were either completely or partially covered by water or mud.

Ike Greets Troops From U.S., Canada

Crack Outfits Join Swelling Pact Forces in Europe

BREMERHAVEN, GERMANY, Nov. 22—(AP)—Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower personally welcomed the vanguards of Pennsylvania's 28th Infantry Division and Canada's 27th Brigade Wednesday as reinforcements for his European defense command.

These and other troops still to come in the next six weeks will build up his forces arrayed in West Germany to 14 divisions. They will exceed 400,000 men. This compares with Soviet forces in East Germany estimated by Allied intelligence to range from 325,000 to 380,000 men.

Flies To Rotterdam

The Supreme Allied Commander flew first to Rotterdam, The Netherlands, to watch the landing of Canada's red-bereted First Infantry Battalion in a drizzling rain. The battalion, part of the 6,000-man strong 27th Brigade, is the first Canadian army unit committed to Europe under the North Atlantic Pact.

"Your arrival here is warmly welcomed because it means that Canada is with us not only with the great sources within her borders, but actually in the field," Eisenhower said. "I know you will be worthy representatives of your great country in this endeavor, which is to secure peace."

Then he flew to Bremerhaven, where 2,200 soldiers of the 28th Division—a Pennsylvania National Guard outfit—had just marched off the U. S. Army transport General Butner. It was raining here, too, and Eisenhower cut short his welcoming speech with the remark "I think the best service

Floats, Bands, Choral Groups To Take Part

Parade Friday To Tell "The Christmas Story"

By ANGELYN PALERMO

The pageant of the birth of the Christ Child in Bethlehem almost 2,000 years ago will be told in dramatic and musical form Friday at 1 p.m. in Marion's downtown Christmas parade, entitled "The Christmas Story."

Churches, school bands and choral groups in the city and county have prepared about 15 parade floats which, when combined in five units, will tell "The Christmas Story."

The first unit in the parade will give a general announcement of the pageant with LaRue High School Band playing "Oh Come All Ye Faithful." Central Christian Church's float of a large open Bible will follow, setting forth the theme of the parade, "The Christmas Story." It is inscribed with the words "Peace on earth, good will towards men."

Caledonia churches' float, depicting the carol "Come Emmanuel," will head the next unit which tells of human bondage and a world crying for help. The Eastside Mothersingers will follow and sing "Come Emmanuel."

Annunciation Scene

Two trumpeters will herald the scene of "The Annunciation" prepared by Prospect Street Methodist Church. The scene shows an angel telling Mary that she is to be the mother of the Savior.

The announcement to the shepherds of the Child born in the City of David, the Savior born in Bethlehem, will be shown by a Trinity Baptist Church float. Members of the First Evangelical and Reformed Church will follow singing "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."

The next scene sets forth the place of birth of Christ, born in a stable because there was no room in the Inn. This part of the story is described by the Green Camp Baptist Church carol float, depicting "Silent Night" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem" with the Harding a capella choir singing both carols. "The Nativity" scene of the Child in the manger will be presented by the Emanuel Lutheran Church.

The recapitulation of "The Christmas Story" is climaxed in the fifth unit of the parade with the group on "The Adoration." The First EUB Church float depicting "We Three Kings of Orient Are" will be followed by the Marion Serenaders singing "Joy to the World" and "We Three Kings." Summing up the story is the float on "The Adoration" built by the Epworth Methodist Church, leading all to worship and adore Christ.

The Harding High School Band and the float carrying Santa Claus, spirit of good will and joy in today's Christmas, winds up the parade.

The parade will form at 12:15 p.m. Friday on W. Center St. and Blaine Ave. It will move promptly at 1 p.m. east on West Center St to Main St., south on Main St. to Church St., east on Church St. to State St., north on State St. to Center St., west on Center St. to Main St., north on Main St and leave the line of march on Mill St.

Police will direct the parade. Members of the Retail Merchants Division and the Junior Chamber of Commerce will serve as marshalls and direct the formation

Red Air Power Growing Swiftly, General Warns

Truce By Christmas Korea Goal

Allies Close To Accepting Red Counter Proposal

MUNSAN, Korea, Thursday, Nov. 22—(AP)—Agreement looked near this Thanksgiving Day on a buffer zone plan designed to bring a Korean truce by Christmas.

The United Nations command apparently was willing to accept a new Communist counter-proposal provided the Reds would agree to clarify — in writing — precisely when the fighting would stop.

The Red proposal, submitted during a two-hour subcommittee session Wednesday, resembled in most respects an allied formula for truce by Christmas proposed last Saturday.

Want It In Writing.

While the Reds agreed verbally not to demand a pullback of troops until the final truce was signed, sealed and delivered, the U.N. command wanted that assurance down in black and white.

The U.N. negotiators promised to bring what they called "necessary revisions" of the Communist proposal to today's subcommittee session at Panmunjom, scheduled for 11 a.m. (9 p.m. Wednesday, EST)

There were two revisions sought by the Allies:

1. Clarification of when troops should be withdrawn from the buffer zone. Asked Wednesday when the Reds would have troops pulled back, North Korean Maj. Gen Lee Song Ho said "after the agreement is signed."

Lee was not asked whether he meant the full armistice agreement or simply an agreement on the buffer zone issue, item two on the agenda. The U.N. wanted this cleared up.

2. The Allies also were expected to insist on more specific reference to continuation of the fighting until the full armistice agreements are signed and sealed.

Shift Emphasis.

The Red proposal merely says "in view of the fact that hostilities will continue until the signing . . ." In the U.N. version of the buffer plan, agreement on the principle of continuing hostilities was put at the top of the program.

Claim U.S. Plane Violated Red Borders

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA, Nov. 22—(AP)—Hungary and Romania Wednesday charged their frontiers were violated by a U. S military plane which vanished Monday after reporting it had been fired upon by border guards of the Soviet Satellites.

The charges were the first acknowledgment by the two governments that they knew anything about the incident.

Fog over the craggy mountains and woods of the Yugoslav-Italian border region today hampered the air search for the plane, a C-47 transport carrying diplomatic cargo to Belgrade, which is believed to have made a crash landing in the area.

The two officers and two enlisted men of the crew set out from Erding air base near Munich, Germany, Monday morning for the U. S. embassy in the Yugoslav capital with an eight-hour fuel supply.

Plane Lost

The embassy said a Yugoslav government check of its border stations and other authorities indicated the plane got lost and mis-

Many Attractive Selections

Marion Stores Filled With Christmas Gifts For Young and Old

By EDNA S. DUTTON

That jolly fellow, so wise in the ways of Christmas, has touched Marion stores with his magic wand to make dreams come true for everyone from toddlers to silver haired grandpas.

Months ago Marion merchants began to find the answer to the "what-to-get" problem for everyone in the family and the results of their efforts are to be found in the array of gifts on shelves and counters.

Santa's sleigh and reindeers prance around walls, Christmas trees twirl, and ribbon, tinsel and wreaths are in evidence everywhere. And if Santa has any advice, it is "shop early and then wait for me."

Oldsters as well as the small fry will find the toy counters most enchanting. Junior can double for Hopalong Cassidy with hat, spurs and gun, dispatch trains over miles of track, put the performing duck through his paces and who wouldn't get a thrill out of putting money in the bank or ringing it up on the cash register? Counters are loaded with household furnishings in plastic, pandas, elephants, teddy bears, a fire truck with ladder and bell, moving vans, filling stations, houses with every room furnished. Bicycles, tricycles, sleds, wagons, scooters and other means of transportation are to be had, and for the youngster who would farm or build, the selection is wide.

Baby Gift Selections

For his honor the baby who is glimpsing his first Christmas tree there are cumfy things galore. Sleeping bags in lovely soft colors, tiny booties with sponge rubber and terry cloth soles and to solve mother's problem of toilet facilities when travelling, there is a compactly packed "travel seat" which can be folded up and carried in a good sized pocket book. In addition to the many clever frocks and suits for the one and two-year-olds, there are blue jeans just like big brother's and sister's. These are made of sanforized denim, elastic back and snap crotches.

For the three to eight-year-olds there are boxer suits for boys in gray and red with appliqued animals on the shirts, corduroys in greens and brown and snappy dress slacks in "hip-huggers" and snap-on belts. These are in plaids and plain colors. Nylon V-neck sweaters are to be had in green, blues, browns and plaids and they are also to be found in the coat sweater style. For siter, just under her teens there are frocks galore, all in gay colors and smart styling. Accessories include Hopalong Cassidy earmuffs, fuzzy and warm, and water proof mittens which also promise to be warm.

Clothes for Pre-Teens

To make the pre-teen's dream come true there are dresses for holiday parties in taffeta with velvet trim and swishing skirts and pleats and for the pre-teen boy there are flannel, gabardine and corduroy shirts, fur trimmed tackle-coats, gloves and accessories. And what little girl wouldn't like to dress up in the nylon lace trimmed slip and panties? An answer to the growing two to 14-year-old's problem is found in the cotton stretch and grow slip with dainty lace straps that can be "let down" and a wide "spare" band to make the waist longer.

For the toddlers and up to five years old there are white fur muffs with caps to match, dresses with smocking and pleats, in plaids and plain colors. Some have perky bows in the back.

This year milady may go truly feminine in crinoline, lace and bangles. Back in the limelight and promising to go places is the crinoline petticoat with its swishing ruffles and gay contrasting colors. Robes are of satin, nylon, quilted and plain.

An all nylon robe promises easy

Truman Shares Turkey Dinner With Vinson

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 21—(AP)—President Truman returned to Florida today with Fred M. Vinson, chief justice of the United States, who has been mentioned frequently as his choice for president if he does not seek re-election.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson flew down from Washington in the White House plane, "The Independence," with the President and Mrs Truman.

The announced purpose of the Vinson visit is to have a Thanksgiving dinner of turkey with all the trimmings with the Trumans in the white frame cottage that becomes the "Little White House" when Mr. Truman is here.

The "Independence" came down at the Boca Chica Airport at 1:38 p.m. (EST) after a flight of less than four hours from the capital where the President lit into the Republicans in the manner of a campaigner.

Says U.S. Challenged In Korea

"Sinister" Change In Air War Noted By Gen. Vandenberg

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The chief of the United States Air Force Wednesday spelled out the "sobering lesson" of swiftly expanding Soviet air power as revealed in Korea.

American control of the Korean air is being "seriously challenged" by Russian-made planes flown by Russian-speaking pilots, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg declared.

In a remarkably detailed and frank news conference based on his recent visit to Korea, Gen. Vandenberg read a 4,000-word formal statement and answered a barrage of questions. Of the air situation there, he said there had been a significant and "even sinister change." He cited these points:

1. The Chinese Communist air force has deployed in North China and Manchuria about 1,500 planes, approximately one-half of which are MIG-15 jet fighters. The MIG "in many respects can outperform our own F-86; it has out-climbed the best airplanes that have been tested against it and performed in combat at altitudes approaching 50,000 feet.

2. The MIG can fly "at speeds in excess of the speed of sound"—761 miles per hour at sea level. Thus it is apparent the Soviets "already have large numbers of military aircraft capable of supersonic flight."

3. "Overnight China has become one of the major air powers of the world." Vandenberg explained that while Red China lacks industrial and technical resources she is the "direct beneficiary of another power" which possesses those resources. He was referring to Russia.

4. The Communists are trying to push their airfield building program southward toward the place where the ground armies are locked in battle. By continuous bombing effort, the USAF has managed to keep three new enemy fields of this type inoperational.

5. While the U.N. air force at present still retains superiority over the Communist air force, its activities are limited by the "ground rules." It cannot get at the takeoff points of enemy fighters, destroy them in great numbers and gain actual air "supremacy" (which means the enemy becomes incapable of effective interference).

Vandenberg, obviously referring to the ban on U.N. attacks on Red air bases across the Yalu River in Manchuria, spoke of the "unusual and indeed unique limitation governing the scope of the air war." He said that "under the ground rules established at the outset of the Korean war, it is impossible for us to gain air supremacy."

This brought up two questions: has the Air Force made a new effort to get permission to bomb the Manchurian bases? Does it want to use atomic bombs in the Korean war?

To the first question, Vandenberg said "the crossing of the Yalu River is a political decision that must be taken by the United States with its United Nations allies."

To the second, he said that "any decision to use atomic bombs is a governmental decision with which I have nothing to do." To another question, he said there are no suitable targets in North Korea for atomic bombs. Moreover, he explained, conventional explosive bombs are better for ripping up air fields than the massive, broad blast of an atomic explosion.

Thanksgiving

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK

ONCE upon a time a man who didn't believe in Thanksgiving went to have a drink on Thanksgiving Day at a bar where the bartender believed in Christmas.

"Gr-r-r-rumph-h-h-h, and soda!" he said.

"Yes, sir," said the bartender. "Would you like some soda, too?"

"Gr-r-r-rumph-h-h-h-h!"

"Yes, sir, here's the soda."

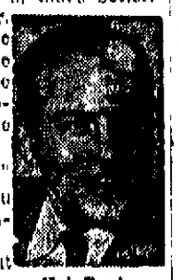
"Ah-h-h-h-h-h, that's better!"

"Well, Mr. Belcher," said the bartender, "have you noticed the Christmas decorations in the windows?"

"Shut up, Joe!"

"What did you say, Mr. Belcher?"

"I said, shut up, Joe."



Hal Boyle

* * *

THE BARTENDER looked along the empty polished mahogany bar—empty of its usual customers—and said:

"Don't you have no place to go on Thanksgiving, Mr. Belcher?

Gee—"

"Shut up!" said Mr. Belcher. "I don't believe in Thanksgiving."

"Gee," said Joe, "Don't nobody in the world want you today, sir?"

"Nobody want me?" replied Mr. Belcher. "I don't want them. I want peace."

He ordered a drink and muscled it down firmly. Joe thought it over uneasily, then said triumphantly:

"But don't nobody really want you, Mr. Belcher?"

"Of course somebody wants me, Joe," said Belcher testily. "You think I'm all alone?"

"Well, there's nobody else at the bar, sir."

* * *

BELCHER brooded that over for a while. Then he said, "a man's always got his mother. I could call her, you know."

"I dare you," said Joe cautiously.

"Are you crazy? You think a guy doesn't have the guts to call his own mother on Thanksgiving Day?"

Joe said nothing as Mr. Belcher began dialing the long distance phone. A few moments later he heard his customer screaming into the phone:

"No, mama this isn't Elmer. How the hell do I know where Elmer is? This is Oswald Mom. Mama, how are you? Put your hearing aid right next to the phone, darn it, Mama. I said, how are you?"

There was a murmur back and forth, and then Joe heard a voice—she must have been speaking close into the phone echo: "Thank you, Oswald dear, for calling, you have made my Thanksgiving Day very happy, son."

* * *

THEN THE PHONE clicked off, and Mr. Belcher turned around.

"Well, everything is pretty much the same around home," he announced, and then saw the happy eye of the bartender on him.

"I'm glad you—" began Joe.

"Oh, shut up," said Mr. Belcher, "and give me the turkey dinner. Put some extra cranberries on it, will you. Mama used to pile the cranberries on thick—she cooked them herself."

"Merry Christmas," said Joe, "It's coming up."

"Shut up," said Mr. Belcher. "What have you got to be thankful for anyway?"

Richer Than Gold

By Inez Robb

NEW YORK

LOVE and a sense of security—the psychiatrists keep saying that children need these two qualities more than anything else in the world.

That was about all the legacy that Murray Moore and his wife, Mary Jean, had to leave their eleven children when a careening car, going the wrong way on a one-way street, struck their automobile and killed them out in Pontiac, Mich.

But it seems to have been enough, a legacy richer than gold. For when the dreadful news was broken to Gerald, 13, the oldest child announced that he would keep the family together.

Inez Robb

"Dear God, I hope we don't have to be separated," said Gerald. And the next oldest Moore, Beverly Ann, 13, moved over by her brother and said they could manage "the children." They could manage anything, said Gerald and Beverly Ann, if only they were all allowed to remain together, including the six-months old baby.

* * *

NOT EVEN TRAGEDY could shake the love and security that were the legacy of Mary Jean and Murray Moore to their children. We can only imagine how happy was the home provided by this laboring man and his wife when the only fear haunting the children was the fear of separation.

And it is obvious that the Moores left their children something else, too: character. And spunk, a nice, old-fashioned American quality. Because a boy of fifteen and a girl of thirteen must have a lot of both when they can tell the probate judge that they can take care of themselves and the little kids just dine if only they are left together.

There are days when it seems to a lot of troubled adults that all teen-agers should be strangled at birth. Those are the days when the papers are filled with stories of teen-age girl baby-sitters stealing their employer blind to finance a riotous trip to New York, and accounts of adolescent boys setting fire to their mothers for failure to produce money for marijuana cigarets.

* * *

AND THEN ALONG comes a story of kids like the eleven Moores in a family where there has never really been any money for anything beyond necessities. But it is as plain as punch that love furnished that home with happiness and festooned it with the beauty of security, and out of it came character and spunk and an ability to look responsibility in the eye.

Sooner or later all adults begin to view the younger generation with alarm.

But it's mainly the bad ones who get in print. You don't ordinarily hear much about kids like the Moores, or girls like Audrey Ober.

In Flemington, N. J., we buy our groceries from Audrey who is just 18 and doesn't weigh quite 100 pounds. When her father died suddenly of heart failure less than a year ago, about all he had to leave Audrey, her frail mother and 10-year-old sister was the little grocery store.

Audrey said she could run the store; her mother wasn't sure. But now, Mrs. Ober is certain. Audrey, with the aid of an elderly man, has run the store and earned a living for her family without asking favor or quarter of anyone. It's hard work for a girl and it doesn't leave much time for fun. But earned bread and independence taste mighty sweet in the long run.

* * *

AS FOR THE eleven Moores, they're still together. A kind probate judge has sent them home. They're to have their chance, with the aid of grandparents and citizens who have started a trust fund. There is even a rich couple hoping to adopt 'em en massee. But in the meantime, they are back in the old home, so rich in love and security.

You can't help but feel the Moore kids are going to make out all right—that they'll make out a lot better than the four teenagers, a little drunk, who plowed their car into that of Murray and Mary Jean Moore, and not only killed the Moores but themselves.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SHOULD you wonder why our airforce flyboys, as they say in the comic strips, are not going to get those fighting planes and bombers promised for Christmas of 1952—maybe not until 1954—I'd like to trace the story back to an explosion one evening not too long ago which blew a couple of kids to death on a Latin American street.

All this needs tracing, because unlike the fates of the comic strips' pure-in-heart, this Oriental war may not come out right side up. This could be tracked down in several directions, but let's look into the blast at No. 438 Avenida St., Santiago, Chile.

Victor Riesel

When the police arrived shortly after 6 o'clock on an evening almost exactly a year ago, they began looking for Emilio Bascuman Carbujal, his wife Rosa, and their 4-year-old and 5-day-old children. They found what was left of them among Communist membership cards; Soviet literature; guns, ammo; kegs of powder; steel cylinders, and the equipment for turning out a homo brand, but effective, supply of dynamite sticks. Also bullets for sub-machine guns.

All of which added up to a good sized plot directed by Com-Inform agents—indicating that the Soviets take the Latinos seriously while we brush them off as the land of bananas, Carmen Miranda and a song which ends, "Take it away". The secret Investigation Service got the hidden guns, but not the men who stashed them there.

THE COMRADES got away and organized all over the place, including the waterfront. Finally, last August, there was a strike which paralyzed the loading of South American copper to key plants in this country, plants parched for the metal.

Exactly 20,000 tons of the stuff lay on the Latino docks at just the moment our own copper strike deadened the pits and smelters across the U. S. Had we had that South American tonnage, President Truman would not have had to dig into our meager stockpile for the rare material. As it was, he authorized first the use of 25,000 tons from the stockpile. Then when a left wing strike, running for over a precious week, cut further into our supply, the White House pulled another 30,000 tons out of the warehouses. Meanwhile, South American shipments slowed by the strike there, just about filtered in.

Call it coincidence, of course. But the point is that we lost such quantities through all this, says Mr. Wilson's headquarters, that we fell fearfully behind in the production of vital electronic equipment, which literally wolfs up the refined copper.

THERE ARE SHORTAGES in communications equipment, radar, secret gadgets and parts, so that many a plane, ready to fly away except for just a single missing part, has been grounded for months. This, coupled with the scarcity of skilled technicians, has forced the Air Force to push back its "target date" for the completion of 95 air groups from late 1952 to sometime in 1953.

Apparently stung by all this, War Production Chief Charles Wilson has dispatched letters asking the U. S. Labor Department specialists (and has directed his own experts) to whip up for him the most complete data on every kind of work stoppage in the past several months. He wants the number of hours lost, even if the walkout was an afternoon stoppage. Of course, he's particularly interested in statistics on stoppages in the key war industries.

What he plans to do with this information, he apparently isn't confiding even to his closest aides. Whether he wants it for a "showdown" with labor, or merely to see how much has been lost, only Wilson can tell. It is certain however, that part of this picture is the fact that despite the energetic efforts of the government specialist in this field, Joe Keenan, himself, a high AFL official, the war boards haven't been able to settle many a vital strike.

HOWEVER, the government's own planners haven't exactly worked their schedules smoothly either. They've contributed heavily to these delays. In fact, they're running fully one billion dollars a month behind in production deliveries.

They had promised four billion dollars worth of equipment monthly by this time, but have been unable to organize their own purchases to get more than three billion dollars worth.

The government's labor critics say that Mr. Wilson will find the general effect of strikes on war production "highly exaggerated", although they do not ignore the seriousness of the few basically crippling strikes which they, too, condemned.

But whether you trace this to the Latinos or the laggards in government planning offices, we don't get that air force for a while.

Sgt. Hare Honored For Service in Korea

A former Marion man, Sgt. 1/c Clarence R. Hare, who recently returned to the United States after serving in Korea, had been awarded a citation and bronze medal for "outstanding service and work in Korea."

Information regarding the citation was sent by Sgt. Hare to his stepmother, Mrs. Gertrude Hare of the White Oaks road. His father is the late Jesse S. Hare.

At present, Sgt. Hare is stationed at Fort Sill, Okla. He returned to the United States on July 4, this year, having gone overseas a year previous to that. He has been in service approximately 20 years, re-enlisting for a period of six more years following his return to the States.

While in Korea, he was a member of the 27th Ordnance Maintenance Company, First Cavalry Division, and served as assistant chief clerk for his company. During World War II, Sgt. Hare served in Europe.

Sgt. Hare is married and has a step-daughter, Mrs. William Marks of Canby Ct. A sister also lives here, Mrs. Francis Disbennett of Bellefontaine Ave.

Pastor From Florida Talks To Kiwanis

Rev. Wallace Haines Tells of Experience On European Trip

A special Thanksgiving program, with the Rev. Wallace Haines of Zephryhills, Fla., as the guest speaker, was presented when the Marion Kiwanis Club held its weekly luncheon meeting Wednesday at Hotel Harding.

The Rev. Haines at present is field representative for Europe in the Council of Christian Leadership, an organization sponsored by Senator Ralph Flanders and Senator Estes Kefauver. Studying at the University of Chicago, he majored in history and international relations there and also taught those subjects at the university later.

The speaker told of his experiences and encounters with the people during his visits and trips to Europe, speaking particularly of Europe. He was in attendance at a conference held in Europe by the Council of Christian Leadership.

Germany Recovering

Germany, he related, is making a great recovery. The people, primarily the businessmen, admit they didn't resist the Hitler movement because they had too many selfish interests and also because of their families. He stated, however, he believes the German people want to be friends with Americans. He added he thinks we need to check up on our foreign policy.

Talking briefly on Greece, he explained the Greek authorities are asking the question, Does America have a spiritual Marshall Plan?

He said there is a time for forgiveness, and that time is today. He said it is time for men to pray and repent, adding that it is everybody's responsibility to pray, stressing that it all shouldn't be left to the preachers.

Must Return to God

"As long as we place our confidence in men and money, we will not recover. Therefore, we must return to religion." He said he told the German people when traveling through that country, "There is a rising sense of responsibility in America."

The speaker was introduced by Elmer Weimer, a member of the church committee.

Guests were John A. Abel of Kansas City, Mo., a former resident of Marion, and Merle Zieg of Marion.

Women Advised on Money Matters

Investment Dollar Said Less Likely To Shrink

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

If you had lived in 1860, you could have ordered a porterhouse steak at New York's most fashionable restaurant, Delmonico's, for three cents Pork chops cost four cents. Roast beef or veal, five cents.

These quotations from an old menu are used to dramatize a lesson on the cost of living included in a series of investment programs which thousands of women's clubs throughout the country have been offering their members recently.

The idea of the course, sponsored by the Mutual Fund Institute, a non-profit corporation, is to teach women how to invest their money wisely and well

The lesson of the three-cent steak serves to point up the fact that you never can tell how much a dollar will be worth a few years hence.

Back in grandmother's day, a dollar was a good round sum, good for several meals of steak, potatoes and apple pie. Today a dollar represents the tip you leave the waiter when you buy dinner for one at any top quality big city restaurant

If you cook your meals at your home, a dollar will buy a pound of hamburger these days, and you still have to buy the potatoes and apple pie, to say nothing of the soup, salad, bread and butter.

So, if grandmother had stashed a silver dollar away in the sugar bowl in her early youth, her grandchildren couldn't buy much with it if they happened to come across it today.

* * *

THE LESSON the investment experts have to teach is that it doesn't do much good to bury your dollars in the back yard or hide them under the mattress in these days as dollars shrink.

But if you have extra money that isn't needed for the daily expenses of food, clothing and shelter, you can put them to work for you in the basic industries of the country. Then if inflation continues, your working dollar will inflate along with the cost of living. Maybe it will amount to ten dollars in a few years. And then, if hamburger costs ten dollars a pound, you can still buy a pound of hamburger.

Investment in stocks, a term which has frightened U. S. women for a good many years, is as simple as that. It means that you own a part of a working business which, if you have chosen well, will pay you earnings over the years. And if prices go up, the value of your invested dollar also will increase

But most women who have had no experience in corporation finance have little idea how to begin on an investment program. They have heard sad tales of widows losing their nest-eggs in stock market fluctuations, and often view the whole idea with alarm

Wise investment counselors will tell you that you should not buy stocks or bond if your only interest is a quick, spectacular profit. But if you buy for investment, choosing basic industries in a dip the end of the month, it seems the wise thing, then, to put it to work for you, instead of leaving it in the sock to shrink still further.

An emergency fund of ready cash should always be on hand, of course But funds above that, which otherwise would lie idle, can be invested in American business and industry to provide a tangible hedge against increased inflation

Some people prefer to buy real estate, or diamonds, which also can be counted on to increase in value as prices go up and dollar value shrinks.

Whatever you choose, the experts advise, buy something of real value if you would be safe in this age of sky-rocketing costs. Because those dollars in the sugar bowl may someday shrink clear out of sight.

versified list, then you are pretty sure that as the country grows your holding will increase.

* * *

THE INFLATIONARY SPIRAL has been going up for the last 100 years, and it probably will continue. Our American standard of living, the highest in the world, keeps getting higher Prices keep going up Taxes get bigger And the old family pay-check continues to shrink.

This is the first year that the churches are taking part in the Christmas parade and it is the hope of the churches that it will continue to be a community project in which the churches tell "The Christmas Story," reported the Rev. R. W. Faulkner. He is directing the participation of the churches in the parade, with the assistance of the Rev. Ashley Booth, the Rev. Evan Owens, the Rev. J. B. Holloway and a committee of representatives from all churches taking part in the parade

Marion's Christmas parade is part of the new and enlarged Christmas program being sponsored this year by the Retail Merchants of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, with the cooperation of civic, religious and educational groups in Marion and Marion County.

With the help of 37 volunteer electricians, Christmas street decorations were installed Tuesday night. About $1,000 worth of new ornaments were added this year because of the electricians' cooperation.

Christmas Tree

A community Christmas tree, about 30 feet tall, was put up in front of the courthouse and decorated with lights Tuesday night when the street decorations were installed A new Star of Bethlehem tops the gigantic evergreen.

Santa Claus will make his headquarters at the courthouse beginning Friday. Children may visit him there every shopping day until Christmas from 2:30 p.m until store closing time From 1 to 2:30 pm, each day, he will be visiting the stores in town

Soviet Guest In Coventry Upsets English

COVENTRY, Eng., Nov. 22—(AP)—Coventry is entertaining the deputy mayor of Stalingrad, Mrs. Tatyana Murashkina. Many people here aren't too happy about it.

Coventry and Stalingrad were two of the worst bombed cities of World War II, and made a friendship pact in those days.

Last August Coventry's city council—under Mayor Harry Weston—invited Stalingrad to send along a goodwill delegation

The delegation turned up Wednesday—Mrs. Murashkina accompanied by an interpreter, a Soviet embassy official and a couple of Russian newsmen—for a 2-day visit.

Weston went down to the railway station to meet them A small girl stepped forward and presented Mrs. Murashkina with a bunch of red carnations The 40 onlookers weren't exactly a cross section of Coventry's citizenry, they were mostly newsmen and members of the local Communist party.

Weston said "letters and telegrams of abuse" are arriving at his office. He did not disclose how many or what they said.

Local Communist party plans to entertain the Stalingrad visitor at dinner in a Coventry engineering works were upset when the management banned the function So the Communists took their visitor off to a small hotel.

Call Out Fire Engines For Barbara Hutton

LONDON, Nov. 22—(AP)—Fire engines were called out for Barbara Hutton at London airport Wednesday night.

The 30-year-old heiress refused to leave the strato-clipper on which she was travelling from Frankfurt ,Germany, to New York. British regulations prohibit passengers remaining aboard planes while they are refueled—unless fire-fighting equipment is standing by.

The other passengers on the plane quietly filed into the airport lounge for the 45-minute refuelling stop, but Miss Hutton picked up a magazine and started reading.

"I would rather stay on board," she announced determinedly.

U.S. Plane

took the Drava River, which runs along the Hungarian frontier and close to the Romanian, for the Sava, which marks an air corridor to Belgrade. The Sava almost parallels the Drava, but flows 40 miles or so to the southwest of the Drava.

The pilot reported he was fired on by Hungarian border guards, the embassy said, and Yugoslav sources said the plane again was fired upon when it got as far east as Jasa Tomic, on the Romanian border.

The last report from the pilot was at dusk, the embassy added, when he apparently was trying to retrace his course all the way across Yugoslavia to Italy, though he was only about 50 miles northeast of Belgrade when he turned about at Jasa Tomic.

This message said he was about out of gas and indicated he was trying to make Venice or Undine from a position west of Zagreb, in northern Yugoslavia. This message made no mention of the plane having been damaged by the shots fired at it by the Hungarians and Romanians.

Ohio Turnpike Setback Only Temporary

Believe Bonds Will Sell After Act Is Rewritten

COLUMBUS, Nov 22—(AP)—The proposed northern Ohio turnpike has been stopped dead in its tracks, but you can't find a soul close to the project who is gloomy

Most men close to turnpike planning for the last couple of years say privately Tuesday's long-awaited investors' decision on turnpike bonds made them quite happy.

True, there may be no construction on the turnpike until late next summer—perhaps not even then. The turnpike act is defective and must be amended before bonds can be sold, the investors said.

But, officials say this statement from the investors' group put the turnpike over the hump—assured construction of the $300,000,000 highway eventually:

"Were it not for this deficiency, we believe that we could successfully underwrite the issue"

That was the word the turnpike commission has been awaiting for more than a year.

The big question all these months has been is there a market for the turnpike bonds?

A spokesman who asked he not be quoted by name declared:

"That was the key to the entire situation. Until the bonds are sold, the commission can not do anything about acquiring its right of way. Until the bonds are sold, the commission doesn't have a penny This means that, after the law is fixed up, the bonds can and will be sold"

Clear Probe Chairman

Washington, Nov 22—(AP)—A house investigating group yesterday cleared its chairman, Rep King (D-Calif), of rumors that he intervened improperly in three Southern California tax cases.

After two days of hearings behind closed doors, Rep. Combs (D-Tex), acting chairman of the House ways and means subcommittee, issued a report stating

"The subcommittee has unanimously concluded that the rumors concerning actual or attempted intervention by Rep King in these matters are completely without foundation"

King's committee is in the midst of a sensational probe of the nation's tax collecting system.

King himself asked for an investigation of reports concerning his activities. He called them "malicious and false", and indicated that he did not feel free to direct the main inquiry until they were run to earth He yielded the chair to Combs while what Combs called "the diversionary inquiry" was in progress.

Really Honest Man Gets Clean Bill of Health

BUFFALO, N. Y—(UP)—Diogenes' search for an honest man would have ended if he could have visited the office of George Cotran, deputy city court clerk.

A man entered the office, said he was 24 years old, and asked for a warrant against himself.

"I went through a boulevard stop sign," he explained "I should be arrested and fined and my license should be marked."

Cofran told him:

TO ASK LAW CLARIFIED

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22—(AP)—The General Assembly will be asked at its next session to clarify the now vague law requiring directional lights on trucks where hand signals can not be seen. A state highway patrol spokesman said yesterday the present law is a source of many legal headaches. He said "each case must rest on its own merits" and "the truckers want the matter clarified as much as we do"

Pause To Savor Freedom's Bounties

Americans Thankful In Troubled World

By The Associated Press

Like the Pilgrim fathers of 1621, Americans pause to savor the hard-won bounties of freedom in a troubled world on this Thanksgiving Day.

Half at war, striving for peace, the nation plans to observe the holiday with the traditional brown-roasted turkey and all the trimmings. Sparkling cold, clear weather is forecast generally, with snow in some areas.

Even on the far-off Korean battlefront, many American combat troops could heap their mess kits with turkey-day fare calculated to make the eyes of their rice-fed Communist enemies pop out. At one frontline post, the mess sergeant prepared a menu ranging from stuffed celery hearts, olives and shrimp cocktail to hot mince pie.

Hope of Peace

And there was hope, too, that the guns might soon fall silent as American officers expressed cautious optimism for a cease-fire in the bitter fighting that began almost 17 months ago.

The latest casualty list, announced by the Pentagon yesterday, showed just over 100,000 Americans killed, wounded or missing in action Officials say enemy losses have been at least ten-fold heavier.

At Key West, President and Mrs. Truman planned to observe the day with a small family dinner The President resumed his Florida vacation after a quick round-trip to make a political speech in Washington.

In formally proclaiming the day of Thanksgiving, Mr. Truman had called upon his fellow Americans to "pause in their autumn labors and give thanks to Almighty God.

Plenty of Sports

Open-air football fans and stay-at-home TV viewers had a heavy menu of games today and over the weekend as the gridiron season entered the homestretch amid the usual controversy over post-season bowl games.

The Weather Bureau reported the coldest weather ever recorded so early in the season in the East and Southeast, but said it should warm up for Thanksgiving Day in the eastern half of the country. Snow was forecast for some western areas.

Turkey dinners generally came higher this year. The government estimated the traditional dinner for a family of four in the nation's capital would cost about $6 16' or 34 cents more than it cost last Thanksgiving Day.

LOYALTY CASE IGNORED

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22—(AP)—A case involving loyalty oath requirements signed by more than 4,000 teachers and employes of Cleveland schools was ignored yesterday by Ohio's supreme court Common pleas and Appellate courts both had denied a taxpayer's request to enjoin operation of the loyalty program It termed the money spent for oath forms an illegal expenditure

WHAT'S THIS? Rep Joseph Martin (R-Mass) (above) wears a rather shocked expression as he got his first glimpse of Korea when he stepped out of a B-17 Air Force plane which landed him at Pusan Thursday Martin and Rep Leonard Hall (R-NY) visited Korea over week end.

Disarmament Plan Spurned

Czech's Reject West's Program

PARIS, Nov. 22—(AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia insisted Wednesday the British-French-American disarmament plan would result in a "vicious circle" without ending the east - west deadlock over atomic weapons.

Prague's chief delegate to the U.N. session here, Dr Gertruda Sekaninova - Caittova, listed Czechoslovakia's objections to the proposal in a speech to the 60-nation political committee The committee is still awaiting the official Moscow reaction to be laid down by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, perhaps Friday.

Delegates of some small countries called the first section from a Soviet bloc nation surprisingly mild, and expressed hope the Czech speech indicated some plan could be worked out acceptable to both sides.

The political committee cancelled its afternoon session because of a lack of speakers. Delegates of East and West obviously were waiting each other out before making definite declarations packing for the traveller, and this year challis comes into its own as a robe fabric Taffeta and corduroy are in many styles while a lounging set, zipped fitted knee in black velvet with a gold coat would be welcome under any tree. A bride would welcome a white robe with gold quilting and something smart is a reversible robe, red and plaid.

Gowns and Slips

Gowns and slips are in nylon with exquisite designs in gold thread and among the colors are coral, chartreuse, tangiere (off coral) and many others

Those gorgeous cumfy stoles, new and popular, have many uses They may be worn over the head, as a scarf and if you are a television fan they are the last word In this use they are tagged as "television warmers"

For the holiday dance and cocktail party, something in this line is the answer to a Christmas worry. Formals are floor length or ballarena; cocktail dresses are to be had in taffetas, solid or iridescent, the latter in dark shades of black, bronze and navy, ottoman failles in candlelight shades, some velvet trim with full skirts and crinoline petticoats The Junior miss may choose her holiday dress in bronze, blue and other soft shades, with a portrait neckline, pleats or plain skirts, and velvet or plain trim. Casuals have smart jackets and there are dressy tailored models to choose from.

White hats with flower trim have a wide appeal and for that smart dressy touch, there are veils plain and with sequins. For comfort there is the mother-daughter wool snow cap with fur trim and head-huggers in reds, greens and other colors.

Gifts for Dad

For father there are scarves, gloves, smoking sets, ties in dazzling colors and designs, sweaters in many colors and styles and sport shirts Socks in wool or lighter weight cottons are in bright colors and pajamas are in every choice range Comfort is the word for lounging garments and matching key cases and billfold sets are to be had together with tie racks and many other gifts. For the "hard to buy for" there is always the miniature hat box in which to place a gift certificate and let him make his own selection.

On the purse counters are to be found handbags in velvets, faille, suede, glove cloth, Corde, in black, brown, green, navy and other shades In the realm of jewelry there are pearls, rhinestones, colored stones, and if your gift-giver is generous there's bracelet, necklace, earrings and pin all in the same pattern Hankies are gay and flowerful, and there are scarfs in many hues.

Not to be overlooked are the shoes with range from the practical smart boot that for style and beauty can "go anywhere," to the daintiest of dancing slippers in gorgeous materials and style.

Selections for Home

For the home the selection is limitless Lamps, chairs, tables for comfort and decorativeness offer a large range of selection. Lamps that fit any corner and occasion are provided with adjustable reading or television range, and may be bright or soft. Quite modern is the Italian import which may be adjusted to any position. Just the thing for that problem spot is a single chair inlaid with a brass design. Cocktail tables, which trend to the larger styles are a thing of beauty as well as utilitarian Helpful to the host or hostess is a cocktail table which can be extended to provide a metal tray in the center for ice or tea service as wished. For the kitchen there are gadgets galore and many lovely things in plastics. Linens for the house from top to bottom and there are patterns ranging from formal to the gayest of gay.

Crystal and rhinestone, pearls, gold and silver necklaces, earrings and pins present an alluring array. Popular with the junior miss is the heraldic jewelry, a large medallion hung on a black velvet cord.

hearings on Stary's activities, said that prior to his entrance into the United States Stary was trained in Moscow "in espionage and assassination"

"For about 6 months he was given special training in Czechoslovakia in methods of silent killing and political activity," the senator added. He said it was noteworthy that Stary joined the Czech foreign office only a short time before being sent here.

Sworn testimony, O'Conor said, was that Stary's mission in the United States was to direct a Czech espionage network and "to maintain discipline over the Czechoslovakian personnel in the United Nations and in the Czechoslovakian consulate"

O'Conor reported that the state and justice departments have refused to commit themselves on whether the Czech and his wife will be readmitted to the United States.

BARKLEY IN JAPAN

TOKYO, Thursday, Nov. 22—(AP)—Vice President Alben Barkley arrived by plane today on a surprise visit to Japan. His plane touched down at nearby Haneda Airport at 7:55 a.m. (5 55 p.m., Wednesday, EST). On hand to greet him were Gen Matthew B Ridgway, supreme United Nations commander, prime minister Shigeru Yoshida of Japan, ambassador William Sebald and other dignitaries.

Terrible Tempered When in Love

Facts on Holiday Bird Given for Table Talk

By ED CREAGH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov 22—(AP)—Bet you didn't know turkeys are terrible-tempered when they're in love.

Or that they don't know enough to come in out of the rain.

Or, for that matter, that the word "turkey" may have come to us from a Hebrew word meaning 'peacock"

I didn't know these things, either, until I approached the Department of Agriculture for some Thanksgiving-type information. Then one word led to another and I reeled out with all sorts of turkey lore which you're welcome to borrow for table talk today.

For instance the bird you're likely to be devouring belongs to the largest crop in history This country is growing 52,800,000 turkeys this year, compared with 45,700,000 in 1950.

Hard To Raise

This is no mean tribute to the American turkey farmer, for the big birds are infernally hard to raise. They get all sorts of ailments—chicken pox (honest!), blackhead, limberneck and mycosis of the crop, among them. They are subject to nasty head colds and have never heard of antihistamines.

Young turks, called poults, are especially delicate. Some growers go so far as to wipe their feet when they get wet. This happens pretty often, too, for turkeys, young or old, are not very long on brains. They huddle together, or just stand there looking foolish, instead of taking shelter in a storm.

Male turkeys are determined, quarrelsome lovers There's no living with one of them when another has the inside track with the hen he covets The females go into deep seclusion when setting It's a mansized job to pry one loose from her nest.

Our ancestors shot their own turkeys, the wild variety, for Thanksgiving or sometimes stole them from Indians' turkey traps The modern turkey is descended from a Mexican variety which was sent back to Europe by explorers in the 16th century.

Source of Name

Why is a turkey called a turkey? There are all sorts of explanations. The Encyclopedia Britannica says it's because of a mistaken belief they came from Turkey. The office dictionary says the name was first applied to the guinea cock, which did come from Turkey.

A more ingenius explanation, though, comes from a writer who signed himself E. Richardson in 1697. He says the turkey was regarded as a peacock by the Spaniards who discovered it in Mexico, and that the Jewish merchants who retailed the new birds back in Spain called it by the Hebrew word for peacock, 'Tukki."

If you find out who invented dressing, let me know, will you? He ought to have a monument.

Erie Railroad Accepts Bid

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22 — Erie Railroad today accepted the bid of 99 531 submitted by Salomon Bros. and Hutzler for $6,400,000 par value of 10-year equipment trust certificates at an annual interest rate of 3 per cent. This represents an interest cost to the Erie of 3.062 per cent.

One other bid was received from Halsey Stuart and Co., of 99 303 at 3 per cent.

Participating with the successful bidder were Drexel and Co., Union Securities Corp., and Stroud and Co., Inc.

Proceeds of the sale are to be used to finance approximately 80 per cent of the cost of one 6000-horsepower diesel freight locomotive, eight 1600-horsepower diesel road switching locomotives, six 1500-horsepower diesel road switching locomotives, six 1200-horsepower diesel switching locomotives, one 1000-horsepower diesel switching locomotive and 500 mill type gondola cars of 70-ton capacity. Estimated cost of the equipment is $6,915,000 with the railroad making a down payment of $1,515,000 from its treasury.

Trust of 1952 and will mature in the Erie Railroad Equipment 20 semi-annual installments of $270,000 each, starting June 1, 1952, with dividends payable semi-annually.

British Yield On Pact Defense

ROME, Nov. 22—(AP)—The North Atlantic Allies were reported set last night to create a five-nation naval fire brigade to guard English channel ports and bases along the British and European coasts.

Western military chiefs simultaneously cleared the way for appointment of an American admiral to organize Allied navies to be committed to defense of the Atlantic.

A third question reported settled after months of international wrangling was on the standardization of arms. Informants said the Allies are ready to adopt the United States .30-caliber M-1 Garand as the standard army rifle.

Picture Window Proves Hazard for Birds

BELLEVILLE, Ill—(UP)—The Armin Gantners installed a large picture window in their home to get a full view of placid Lake St. Clair.

The window has proven to be a traffic hazard for birds.

Recent casualties included a covey of eight qual. Five of the birds were killed when they flew against the window. The other three, crippled by the impact, managed to fly away.

The birds apparently are blinded by the reflection of the big window.

ITALY'S WORST FLOOD OF THE CENTURY. Posing new threats for refugee-jammed towns on the rim of the worst Italian floods in this century, heavy rains push crests of the Po river and its tributaries still higher in northern Italy where an estimated 200,000 persons already are homeless. The death toll reportedly is near 200 mark. Aircraft are dropping food and a fleet of small boats is battling swirling currents in rescue attempts.

Rotary Hears Talk by Toledo Dairy Expert

Irving C. Reynolds Tells Of Tour Of Europe, Far East

"A Milk Run Through Europe" was the topic chosen by Irving C. Reynolds of Toledo for a talk at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Marion Rotary Club, Tuesday, at Hotel Harding.

Mr. Reynolds, a past district governor of Rotary and acting president of the Dairy Industry Society International, was a member of one of the special government committees privileged to tour Europe and the Far East just before the outbreak of the Korean War. He is executive head of the Franklin Ice Cream Co. of Toledo.

He said the object of the tour on which he was accompanied by Mrs. Reynolds, was first, to acquaint the leading dairymen of the U. S. with conditions prevailing abroad, and second, to establish a milk supply in the Far East for Americans, both civilian and military.

Nations Visited

France, Belgium, Italy, Sweden, Norway, England, Scotland and Germany were a few of the countries in the Reynolds itinerary.

While in Sweden Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds found to their amazement that Sweden's currency, to the exclusion of most other European countries, has remained almost stable.

Using this as an example of what "could be," Mr. Reynolds said: "The American dollar is fast becoming the basis of the Continental economy." For this reason, he commented, the recent law passed by Congress limiting imports has not been well received especially by the countries such as Holland in which it cuts the dairy products exports drastically.

Efforts of Tourists

He summed up the efforts of all in the tour, especially he and his wife, by stating: "We were all doing the best we could to see that we and all the Americans were not misunderstood.

At the close of the address Francis B. Huber, president of the club, introduced two new members, Kenneth E. Miller of the Universal Cooler Division, Tecumseh Products Co., and Wayne H. Kuhn of the Fairfield Engineering Co. Guests were William H. Gracely, Howard S. Ropke and Fred Artz all of Marion; Grant Vietsch of New York City. The Rev. Robert C. Turner, Richwood and J. L. Patterson, Curdington. The Rev. Paul J. Christensen, a Baptist minister from Ironton, O. was a visiting Rotarian.

Green Camp Group Meets at Church

Special to The Star

GREEN CAMP—A talk by Mrs. Frank McCall of Mt. Victory, president of the Lima district WSCS, featured a meeting of the Methodist Men Monday when they entertained women of the church.

George Schertzer, president of the Methodist Men, gave the welcome. Mrs. Edith Schwaderer, president of the local WSCS, responded.

Claren D. Sommer, music director at the school and his brass quintet, furnished music for the occasion.

Slide pictures of local events occurring in the past year were shown by Edwin Schwaderer. Serving on the social committee were Cicero Diehl, Wilford W. Porter, Donald Schwaderer, Edwin Schwaderer and George Schertzer.

Suburban Shift Noted In Population

Substantiated In Survey by Ohio Development Panel

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22 — The shift of population in the past decade from city to suburbs has been substantiated by recent studies of township population figures, the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission disclosed after a preliminary report on 38 Ohio counties.

Most noteworthy example was Cambridge Township in Guernsey County, Surrounding the city of Cambridge, the township gained 12.5 per cent from 1940 to 1950. The 1950 figures gave Cambridge Township 10,401, an increase of 2,100 over the 1940 figure. Yet, the city of Cambridge actually showed a two per cent loss in population, from 15,044 in 1940 to 14,739 in 1950, accenting the drift of city dwellers to the suburbs.

Greatest gain for the 38 counties studied was in Jefferson County's Cross Creek Township which showed nearly 100 per cent increase for the decade. Adjacent to the city of Steubenville, it grew from 4,709 in 1940 to 9,391 in 1950, absorbing the exodus of residents westward away from the Ohio River to the hills above the city. Huge gains in other townships also disclosed similar trends. Geauga County's Bainbridge Township, across the Cuyahoga County line from Chagrin Falls, showed an increase of 87 per cent, from 1,563 in 1940 to 2,926 in 1950. Clermont County's Union Township, east of Cincinnati, gained 69 per cent from 2,818 in 1940 to 4,757 in 1950.

2 Lose Most

The two counties in Ohio which showed the greatest county loss percentages, Noble, 19.7, and Monroe, 17.9, also showed the greatest township loss percentages among the counties studied. Noble County's Enoch Township lost 30.5 per cent, from 731 in 1940 to 443 in 1950. Monroe County's Washington Township lost 35 per cent, from 1,080 in 1940 to 700 in 1950.

As the studies are completed for each county, the Commission plans to release the figures with a summary of the trends of township's populations within the county.

Hold Reunion in Seoul

Five Servicemen From Caledonia Meet in Korea

The desire of a combat weary Caledonia soldier to visit some of his former Caledonia High School classmates lead to a reunion in Seoul, Korea, in September.

Pvt. Arden Kline of Caledonia, who is now home on rotation leave, had been on the battle line with his company in Korea when he heard that some of his former classmates were in Seoul.

He obtained a five-day pass and visited Seoul. He spent four and one-half days looking for his friends and when they finally got together they were able to visit for only half a day. Pvt. Kline said his friends were in Seoul at the time on non-combat duty. He does not know if they were later reassigned to combat duty.

Present for the reunion were Gerald Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fichtner; Robert Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark; Charles Coldren, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Coldren; Kline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Kline, and Jack Furniss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Furniss, all of Caledonia.

The boys played basketball and football on the Caledonia High School teams in 1946 and 1947. John Salisbury of 255 Homer St. was the athletic coach at Caledonia at the time.

Kline was graduated in 1946, Furniss, Coldren and Clark were graduated in 1947 and Goodman was graduated in 1948. Kline has been overseas for 10 months and does not expect to be sent back to Korea. He is in the United States for re-assignment.

Cleveland, assistant; Mrs. Ray Jacobs, treasurer, and Mrs. Oscar Retterer, assistant; Mrs. J. P. Baylos, teacher, and Miss Dora Jacobs and Mrs. Paul Castanian, assistant teachers.

Devotions were conducted by assistant hostess, Mrs. Mary Haberman.

Mrs. J. P. Goebel gave a short talk on "Our Church Guild," and Mrs. Hayman gave plans for the organ fund. Plans were made for the service committee to send gifts to service men. Plans were made for a potluck supper to be held Dec. 12 at the home of Mrs. Hayman of 680 Uncapher Ave., with Mrs. Smith assisting. Appointed on arrangement and invitation committee are Mrs. Clarence Web, Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Carl Ebert.

Mrs. Arliss Reichardt was in charge of social hour with contest honors going to Mrs. Royal Andrews and Mrs. Hayman, and Mrs. Retterer conducted a grab bag sale. Refreshments were served by hostesses.

Current American Song Hits Find Way Behind Iron Curtain

FRANKFURT, Germany—(UP)—Current American song hits find ways of piercing the Iron Curtain, despite Communistic attempts to suppress such "cosmopolitan expressions of western decadence."

Refugees from Red-dominated Czechoslovakia report that "Jezebel" and "Time For Love" are as popular in Prague as they are in New York.

Czech jazz fans pick up the tunes from the American forces network and other Western stations, write a slightly different version more platable to Communist ears, and duly introduce them to night club audiences.

The Communists have become so alarmed at their popularity that they sometimes send their secret police on midnight raids in obscure night spots specializing in presenting American song hits, the refugees said.

They Like It

Average Czechs, fed on a strict diet of patriotic hymns of praise to Stalin, take to the smuggled jazz like ducks to water.

Once heard in the watered-down version, a tune will make the round of large private parties in the almost-the-original version, usually after more help from the AFN.

Although night clubs have been taken over from their former owners by the state, their existence is tolerated by the Communist regime for a very clear reason—profit.

They still are frequented almost exclusively by the impoverished middle class, while workers, who have more money, prefer to spend their evenings in smoke-filled beer-houses.

The Communists, however, are going ahead with plans for transforming those night clubs that still exist.

Constant Watch Kept

The once-fashionable Lucerna bar, in downtown Prague, recently introduced floor shows on the Soviet model, complete with acrobats and gymnastics. Jazz bands have been confined to places which are easier to check and a constant watch is kept on all tunes that are played.

Hardest hit were the bars with "bad" reputations and small, semi-private cubs in side streets. While several still carry on a flourishing trade, most of them have been closed down and converted into workers' canteens.

However, jazz shows no signs of disappearing. It struggles for survival in a mutilated legal form in full glory at private and semi-private parties, played by enthusiastic amateur bands.

PARKED AUTO HIT

Minor damage resulted when a parked car owned by David L. McCleary of Upper Sandusky was struck by a truck driven by Clayton B. Waldon of near Dunkirk Wednesday, police reported. The accident occurred on Uncapher Ave. at 3 p.m.

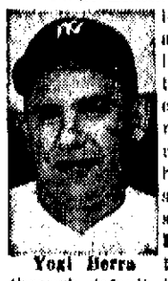
TURKEY TIME. Before attacking that big bird today with well-sharpened knife and fork, we give pause to consider some of the leading figures in sports who have special reason to be thankful.

This is as good a time as any to count your blessings and perhaps give a sincere thanks to Dame Fortune.



Yogi Berra

YOGI BERRA, named the most valuable player in the American League despite an unimpressive .294 batting average, should wait several seconds before ripping into his bird. Newsmen who carried the news to the comicbook reading backstop had a difficult time convincing him they weren't kidding. Yogi's comment was, "Geo, I must have been good." . . . Berra's teammate, Allie Reynolds had plenty of luck in his hurling arm that pitched the Yanks into the series on two no-hit games despite a flipper that sounded like castinets when he pitched . . . Pete Howison, Harding grid coach, welcomes another victory for the Prexies, 1-0, over Columbus West through default, but we're sure Pete and his gang would have preferred to win it on the field . . . "Fearless Fred" Bruney should drop a bread and butter note to Illinois Quarterback Tom O'Connell for helping him get deserved recognition. Fred intercepted three of the Illini passer's aerials. . . .

Cross Country Coach Kenny Somerlot will tell you John Ashworth can sit down at the Somerlot family dinner after his running aided the Prexies in winning their 17th straight the past season. . . . Ray Robbins has only to look at his returning letterman for the St. Mary basketball team to add a few thanks before the knife and fork business. . . . Local bowlers may pause to give blessing for the 10-pin that finally tottered after hanging in mid-air. . . . Vic Janowicz Jackie Nichols should be humble in the move to retire his No. 31 jersey at the end of the season. We can think of no greater honor for a football. . . .

Vic Janowicz

All sports writers owe a note of gratitude to Tennis Star Gussie Moran's publicist who had discontinued publicity on Gussie's famed laced shorts. . . . All the All-American backfield candidates should give first preference of white meat to those big tackles who opened up the holes big enough for Mack trucks to go through. . . .

Wrestling Promotor Les Fishbaugh can thank his long-time friend, Jackie Nichols for making his grapple card at the armory tonight a special one . . . And Jackie in turn can give much of the credit for his popularity to the youngsters who think he's the best. . . .

And all of us, sports followers or otherwise, should say a little prayer of thanks to those wonderful kids in Korea who make such a dinner under peaceful skies possible.

Upsets Seen Possible

Picks Vols, Illini, Stanford As Teams Headed for Bowls

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—The chips are down in games this week at Lexington, Ky., Evanston, Ill., and Palo Alto, Calif., and we'll have to string with the teams most accustomed to raking them in—Tennessee, Illinois and Stanford.

If last week was "Upset week"—and two thirds of the surprise specials came through—then this is the week to revert to form. So—

Tennessee over Kentucky: don't bet against Gen. Bob Neyland on the big games to which he's had a chance to point. A fine duel between the Vols' Hank Lauricella and the Wildcats Babe Parilli, but the game decided by Tennessee's razor sharp blocking.

Illinois over Northwestern: Having hurdled the Ohio State hump with no worse than a tie, the fighting Illini get going again against an old and troublesome jinx.

Stanford over California: The Indians grow in strength with each passing week. California's Golden Bears will be primed to score an upset but ther's no letdown for Stanford.

Rice over Texas Christian: This one goes a long way toward deciding the southwest conference crown and Cotton Bowl spot. Rice on superior balance.

Duke over North Carolina: One of Dixie's best traditional frays. An edge to the Blue Devils on their home grounds.

Purdue over Indiana: The Boilermakers will be out to take this one, hoping to snatch conference and bowl honors in case Illinois should fall.

Baylor over S. Methodist: Larry Isbell takes pitching honors from Fred Benners.

Southern Calif. over UCLA: The Trojans have too much depth.

The United States has at least a dozen stretches of railroad track of 50 miles or more without a curve. The longest, 78.86 miles runs from Wilmington, N. C., northwest to the town of Hamlet.

A quarter section of Biscayne Boulevard in Miami, Fla., has been equipped with street lights mounted on poles able to withstand hurricane winds of 170-mile-an-hour force.

Bishops Name Bruce, Cross Most Valuable

DELAWARE, O., Nov. 22—Ohio Wesleyan's Battling Bishops, winners of the Ohio Conference's mythical football championship, picked Dale Bruce and Wally Cross as their "most valuable player" and honorary captain, respectively.

The Bishops wound up their winningest season in 23 years Saturday with a 34-0 victory over Wittenberg for their sixth league triumph without a setback and an 8-1 over-all mark.

Bruce, 165-pound end from Amherst, won the votes of his teammates as most valuable on the strength of his sensational catches throughout the season. He hauled in 28 aerials for 635 yards and seven touchdowns. Leading Bishop candidate for Little All-American honors, Bruce's 42 points paced the OWU scoring.

The 1951 captain was one of the rare 60-minute performers in this era of two platoon football. Cross, a 190-pounder from Middletown, N. Y., served as either left or right tackle on offense and as right halfback on defense. The steady veteran was an excellent blocker and top-notch pass defender.

Total offense honors for the Bishops went to Hayden Buckley who collected 982 yards, mainly on his passing ability which accounted for 917 yards on 41 completions for eight touchdowns. He also scored 25 points. Second was Jack Allen with 416 total yards.

Coach Glenn Fraser's "opportunists" nickname for his charges was borne out by the final statistics which disclosed that the Bishops recovered 22 of 35 enemy fumbles and intercepted 21 passes.

Huge Crowd Seen for OSU-Michigan

Bucks Aim for First Win Since 1944 Over Wolves

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 22 — Ohio State and Michigan, football rivals since 1897, will clash Saturday at Ann Arbor before a near-capacity crowd, and, for one of the few times in recent seasons, neither team will have championship aspirations at stake.

The Wolverines, who have defeated or tied the Buckeyes every year since 1944, have dropped decisions to Illinois and Northwestern in 5 starts while a loss to Indiana and a tie with Wisconsin and Illinois have prevented Ohio State from entering the title spotlight.

7-Year Drought

Not since the civilian championship season of 7 years ago have the Bucks taken Michigan (18-14) but the 7-7 tie in 1949 vaulted the Scarlet and Gray into a tie for the crown with the Wolverines and moved the Ohioans into the Rose Bowl.

Before Ohio State entered the Western Conference in 1913, the Bucks and Wolverines played 14 games, Michigan winning 12 against two ties. The schools have met on the gridiron every year since 1918, a string of 33 straight games. Michigan has won 19; Ohio 12 and 2 ties have occurred.

Winning streaks for one or other of the rivals have been frequent. Ohio State put 3 straight together in the 1919-21 era and Michigan came back with 6 in a row. The Bucks won 4 straight in the 1934-37 period, during which Michigan failed to score. Then the Wolverines took decisions in the next 3 years. Michigan won only one of the next 4 games, but since Ohio's last victory in 1944, only the tie of 2 years ago has averted 6 straight Maize and Blue triumphs.

14 End Careers

Football careers will end Saturday for 14 Buck seniors, includ-Captain Robert Heid of Fremont and All-American Vic Janowicz of Elyria. Others include Ray Hamilton, Canton; Walter Klevay, Independence; Richard Arledge, Chillicothe; Jack Wagner, Piqua; Tom Rath, Defiance; Steve Ruzich, Madison; Carroll Smith, Sebring; Julius Wittman, Massillon; Richard Logan, Mansfield; Robert Endres, Cincinnati; Ralph Armstrong, Cleveland and Sherwin Gandee, Akron.

The claws of the California condor, which has the widest wing span of any North American bird, are so weak it can scarcely walk on them. The bird needs a lurching run or a sharp cliff to make a good takeoff.

DOCTOR'S ADVICE. Buddy Leake, right, Oklahoma's freshman halfback, talks with Big Jim Weatherall, All-America senior tackle, to learn the facts of football life in the Big Seven Conference. Leake got two touchdowns in the 55-14 upset of Colorado while Weatherall made seven conversions.

Couple View Holiday With Mixed Emotions

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 22—(AP) — A Thanksgiving Day fraught with torn emotion is in store for Mr. and Mrs. William Jack Plott.

They'll arrive here by train. The younger boy, Jimmy Lee, 21, an Army private, will be hugged and kissed at the station.

But tears of grief already are being shed over the homecoming. The other boy, Corp. William Plott Jr., will be in a government casket. He died in Korea June 13 from war wounds.

San Marino, a country with an area of only 38 square miles, is situated in the Appenine Mts. in the heart of Italy.

OSU, Michigan Game on TV

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 22—WLW-C, Columbus, joins NBC's 39 station network for the coast-to-coast telecast of the Ohio State-Michigan game at Ann Arbor, this Saturday, Nov. 24, final game on the NCAA-Westinghouse schedule.

More than 35 million viewers are expected to watch what is annually the "Big Game" for Conference rivals.

First football telecast to span the country since Oct. 13, when the Notre Dame-SMU game was carried by the full NBC TV network, the Buckeye-Wolverine battle marks the twentieth game telecast under the NCAA's experimental program this fall. It will be the fourth to reach the Pacific coast, others having been the Illinois-Wisconsin game, Oct. 6 and Army-USC, Nov. 3.

Browns, Bears Clash in Big Game Sunday

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22—(AP)—The Cleveland Browns and Chicago Bears clash here Sunday in what might be a preview of the 1951 professional football championship game Dec. 23.

Both the Browns and the Bears top their respective national football league divisions, but the Bears are tied with the high-scoring Los Angeles Rams at six victories and two setbacks.

The Rams won the National Conference title last year by whipping the Bears in a playoff.

Thus Coach George Halas' Chicago huskies are in sore need of victory in their first league game with the champion Browns who beat them, 32-41, in a September exhibition and who also beat them in an exhibition here last year, 27-23.

Los Angeles plays the Washington Redskins Sunday and should win easily. Furthermore, a loss to the Browns could drop the Bears behind third-place Detroit, providing Detroit whips the Green Bay Packers today.

Sunday's game will be the next-to-last home contest on the Browns' schedule, and should draw upward of 35,000, if the weather is good. Already the Browns are within 40,429 of equalling their 200,310 total gate for all 1950 league games here, and they still have one at the stadium with the Chicago Cardinals Dec. 2.

Driver Fined $50 On Traffic Charge

Charles B. Meyer, 20, of 190 Forest Blvd. was fined $50 and costs Wednesday night by Mayor L. E. Klinger of Waldo after he pleaded guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Meyer was arrested by the state highway patrol at 5 p.m. Wednesday, following an accident on Route 23 about three and one half miles south of Marion. His car was traveling south and was passing a car driven by Robert Campbell, 23, of Cambridge, the patrol reported. Meyer's car struck the Campbell auto when passing on a curve. Minor damage resulted to both cars.

OK MORE NEWSPRINT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—The government today approved an almost 50 percent expansion of domestic newsprint production facilities. But officials said it may be some time before necessary materials can be made available. The DPA approved an expansion program that would add 490,000 tons to the yearly production of newsprint.

The magazine RN chronicles that certain types of filariasis resulting in blindness or elephantiasis is estimated to affect 100 million people in Asia, Africa, South and Central America and Oceania.

Employment Up Slightly In Marion Area

Survey of 47 Major Firms Shows 9,459 on Payrolls

Employment in the Marion area registered only a moderate increase during the past few weeks. A mid-October survey of 47 major Marion firms showed the number at work totaled 9,459. Although this is only slightly above the mid-September level, it is about 10 per cent above the figure for one year ago, Fred B. Scherff, manager of the Marion office of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported.

In spite of layoffs within industries producing nonelectrical machinery as a result of retooling employment in the manufacturing group increased slightly. Nonmanufacturing establishments also showed a slight gain in employment, with service establishments accounting for most of the rise.

In mid-October 2,028 women were at work within the 47 major establishments — about 30 more than in September and approximately 200 above the number employed one year ago. Job opportunities for women in the Marion area are limited because of the heavy nature of most local industries.

When surveyed in October, employers hoped to add 200 workers to their payrolls in the next few weeks, Scherff reported. The forecast depends upon the availability of workers with specific skills, particularly with machine-shop experience. Over 50 per cent of the workers will be needed by producers of nonelectrical machinery. About one-sixth will be needed in nonmanufacturing—mainly in transportation and utilities.

On Nov. 1, about 740 workers, which included 360 men, were seeking jobs through the local office of the Employment Service. Of this number, 75 were already working but were interested in securing other employments at a higher rate of pay or at a higher skill.

The current number of job seekers is up about one-third from the level of Nov. 1, 1950. The temporary layoffs in plants producing nonelectrical machinery contributed to the increase. The location of a new firm in Marion has also attracted workers into the area.

Of the 300 women seeking employment, about one-fourth have had previous clerical and sales experience, a similar number have worked in service establishments, and the remaining half have had experience as machine operators, assemblers, power-sewing-machine operators, and unskilled factory workers.

Local employers have opportunities for men as machinists, machine-shop workers, mechanical engineers, and foundry workers. Women with acceptable experience are needed as stenographers, typists, and bookkeepers.

Claims for unemployment compensation increased slightly during October as a result of temporary layoffs in the area. Last month, an average of 140 workers were applying for benefits weekly — about 15 above the September figure. One year ago, an average of 160 were claiming weekly payments.

PTA at Oakland Marks Thanksgiving

A special Thanksgiving program was presented by the pupils of the fourth grade, under the direction of their teacher, Miss Ann Ferguson, when the Oakland Heights School PTA met Tuesday night at the school.

Also for the program, talks on civil defense were given by R. E. Copeland and Charles Whysall. The program was in charge of Mrs. Kay Pennington.

Mrs. Paul Rudolph, president, presided for the meeting which was opened with devotions conducted by Mrs. L. C. Massie, and the pledge to the flag. Group singing was led by Miss Wanda McMahan. A report on a recently city PTA council meeting was given by Mrs. Ralph McFann.

The attendance award for the upper grades was won by Miss Ferguson's class, and the attendance award for the lower grades was won by the third grade taught by Mrs. Mae Kinney. Refreshments were served.

DIVORCES MAYOR

CLEVELALND, Nov. 22—(AP)—The wife of the mayor of suburban Cuyahoga Heights won an uncontested divorce yesterday after telling the judge her husband drank heavily and beat and abused her. Common Pleas Judge Felix T. Matia granted the decree to Mrs. Marie J. Gerdon, wife of Mayor William R. Gerdon.

Square Heads Club Holds Reunion

An annual reunion of members of the old Square Heads Club of Marion was held here Tuesday. Twelve of the original group were present, meeting for dinner at Hotel Harding, followed by an evening of reminiscing of old times and meetings in the past.

Formerly a part of the YMCA, the Square Heads Club was an outgrowth of the Y-Indus Club. The organization disbanded about 20 years ago, but reunions have been held every year since, on the Tuesday preceding Thanksgiving.

Those present at Tuesday's affair included S. H. Haldeman of Fredericktown, Curtis Meeker of Upper Sandusky, Carroll B. Kerr and C. W. Biddle of Columbus, and Harold Jacobs, W. P. Cass, J. W. Richards, Charles Whysall, Bryce Downes, Marion Cook, James Baker, and Frank Barnhill, all of Marion.

OPINION NOT BINDING

LIMA, O., Nov. 22—(AP)—The Allen County Board of Elections may either follow or ignore an opinion given yesterday that petitions are illegal asking a recount in a $3,200,000 school bond issue Nov. 6. The issue passed. Prosecutor Anthony J. Bowers said the petitions did not set forth addresses of petitioners and did not contain the name of a chairman.

SECOND VICTIM DIES

BOWLING GREEN, O., Nov. 22—(AP)—Carol Sue Long, 2½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Long of Bowling Green, died yesterday of injuries received in an automobile accident. Ernest Hofer, 32, of Bowling Green was killed in the same accident. His car and one driven by the child's grandmother collided near here Tuesday night.

National Grange Declines To Act On Ohio Protest

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 22 — (AP) — Officials of the national Grange yesterday refused to take action on a protest over election of Ohio Grange Master Byron Frederick of Columbus.

The Grange executive committee announced this decision after a special meeting held during the farm organization's 85th annual convention. The announcement stated the protest came from Ralph O. Brown "who signs his name as chairman of the so-called Ohio Grange Fraternity Committee."

The executive group said this committee "has no legal status in accordance with official Grange procedure."

Although Brown's letter was not made public, a Grange spokesman said it claimed that campaign funds and activities used by Frederick were contrary to Grange rules.

The fraternity was formed last spring, when it asserted insurance companies controlled Grange policies. The Ohio Grange, largest in the nation, takes in about one-fifth of total Grange membership.

GINGERBREAD MEN . . . Let youngsters help make them.

COCONUT FIG BARS . . . Taste treat for that serviceman

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There's still time to send a serviceman in this country a homey box of holiday cookies. Bar cookies, enriched with coconut and figs, are easy to pack. If there's a youngster in your family she'll enjoy making some gingerbred men to tuck in.

COCONUT FIG BARS

Ingredients: 1¼ cups sifted cake flour, 1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine, ¾ cup finely cut figs, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 cup shredded coconut, 1 tablespoon hot water.

Method: Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Beat eggs well; beat in sugar gradually and thoroughly. Mix in butter or margarine, figs, lemon rind, and coconut. Mix in flour, alternately with water. For a thin, chewy bar, spread mixture in two greased 8 x 8 x 2-inch pans and bake in slow (325 F. oven about 30 minutes. For a thick, drier bar, spread in one greased 9 x 9 x 2-inch pan and bake at 325 F. about 35 minutes. Cool and cut in 2½ x 1¼-inch bars. Remove from pans. Makes 3 dozen thin bars, or 1½ dozen thick bars.

GINGERBREAD MEN

Ingredients: 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ¾ teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon allspice, ½ teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup vitaminized margarine, 1/3 cup sugar, 1/3 cup dark molasses, 1/3 cup water.

Method: Sift together flour, baking soda, salt, allspice, ginger, and cinnamon. Cream margarine and sugar. Mix molasses and water together and add to creamed mixture alternately with flour. Roll dough into a ball and chill thoroughly. Roll dough out to ⅛-inch thickness and cut with a gingerbread man cookie cutter. Place on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderately hot (375 F.) oven 12 to 15 minutes. Remove from pan immediately and cool. Decorate gingerbread men with sugar frosting made by mixing ½ cup confectioners' sugar with 1½ to 2 tablespoons water.

Ex-Treasury Secretary Henry Morganthau Wed

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—(AP)—Henry Morgenthau Jr., 60, former Secretary of the Treasury, and Mrs. Marcelle Puthon Hirsch, 47, French-born divorcee, were married yesterday in a private ceremony at the bride's home.

Dr. Julius Mark, senior rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, performed the ceremony before a small group of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Pierre Moulin of Guadaloupe. Others in attendance were Morgenthau's two sons, Robert and Henry 3rd, and his daughter, Joan.

His first wife died Sept. 21, 1949. Mrs. Morgenthau obtained a Virgin Island divorce from Stephen G. Hirsch last month.

Showing New Film at Bellaire

Bob Hope Returning To Ohio for Premiere

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22 — Bob Hope, the All-American comic, is looking forward to his Nov. 27 trip to Bellaire, the All-American town, for the intimate premiere of his new film, "My Favorite Spy," at the home of Mrs. Anne Kuchinka. Hope, whose home was Cleveland, regards his return to Ohio as a real homecoming.

"It's a new wrinkle for me," Bob told the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission. "I've done premieres at movie palaces from one end of the nation to the other, but this one in Ohio is the first I've ever done in anybody's living room. It's the first time anyone ever invited me into their living room. I usually go in through the back door and the pantry is as far as I ever get."

Most Persuasive

Mrs. Kuchinka's letter was the most persuasive of a quarter million contest letters seeking the premier of the new Hope film. She told how her husband worked his way through dental school by putting in summers at a glass factory. Bellaire, called the All-American town because of its disproportionately large contribution of grid stars to collegiate and professional football, rallied behind Mrs. Kuchinka and backed her efforts to get the premier. Nearly everyone in town wrote Hope to help her out, and townspeople pulled strings till they felt like rug weavers.

Old Ski-Nose got serious when asked about holding a world premiere in a living room. "Ordinarily, the average movie fan never gets a chance to go to a world premier. It's the big shots who attend. I haven't got anything against big shots, mind you, but I think it's' about time the little guys—the ones who pay the freight at the box office—get a break.

The Paramount star will be a dinner guest of the Kuchinkas before the public debut of "My Favorite Spy" gets under way at 9 p.m. Hope commented, "The way I can pack away a homemade meal, Mrs. Kuchinka is likely to rue the day she ever took up with me."

Townspeople Join In

The Kuchinkas' modest living room can accommodate only a small group of people, but the nearly 13,000 residents of Bellaire won't be shut out of the premiere festivities. At noon on Tuesday the premiere celebration will get under way with a big parade. School children in Bellaire will be turned loose to welcome the radio and movie star. Lack of a huge auditorium proved no obstacle to Hope, who has entertained in all weather under all conditions in Korea and in war theaters all over the world. A 2 p.m. show will be given by Hope and his troupe, including Jerry Colonna, Rhonda Fleming, Gloria Graham, Jane Sterling, and Marilyn Maxwell and Les Brown and his band.

Hope's regular broadcast will be tape-recorded from 5 to 6 p. m. in the high school auditorium. Loud speakers will carry the show to the audience outside the 1200 capacity makeshift studio.

BOUUND FOR INDIA. Madame Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, retiring Indain Ambassador to the United States, and her daughter, Rita, are shown on their arrival in New York from Washington. The Indian envoy is returning to India to run for Parliament in that countrys' first election under the new constitution.

New Courses Offered

Third Annual Adult Education Program To Begin in January

Marion's third annual adult education program will start with registrations Jan. 7, 8, and 9 at Harding High School. Plans for the 1952 program were made at a meeting of the advisory committee Monday night at the school.

Last year's program attracted nearly 700 residents of the community to 36 courses.

The program is sponsored by the Marion City Board of Education and the advisory committee.

Because of the emphasis the mobilization program has put on production and because of the critical demand in this area for machine shop operators, it was decided to reorganize the machine shop course. Instead of a general course, the 1952 program calls for specialized training on individual machines such as grinders, engine lathes, turret lathes, shapers, milling machines, radial drill presses and other machine shop equipment.

Five New Classes

Five new classes have been set up as follows, advanced salesmanship, a refresher course in mechanical drawing, a beginning course in mechanical drawing, slide rule operating, and a special cours for men who have been operating low-pressure boilers and others interested in this line of work. This course will prepare them for state examinations in Columbus. The committee is offering this special course because of a critical shortage of licensed firemen which has prevailed in this area for a number of years.

Other courses to be offered are art, blueprint reading, cooking, square dancing, study of human relations, home nursing, beginning typing, woodworking, beginning and advanced first aid and accident prevention, public speaking, sewing, shop mathematics, shorthand refresher, Spanish, business arithmetic and business English.

The registration fee will be approximately $5. The final selection of subjects will be governed by the demand. In order to defray the expenses of a class it will be necessary that each class has a minimum of 12 students.

Classes on Two Nights

Because of the anticipated large enrollment and the variety of courses, classes will be held two nights a week. The first class will be held Tuesday night, Jan. 22, and those in the second group will have their first class on Thursday night, Jan. 24.

Each course will continue for a 10-week period and will give students 20 hours of classroom work. Tentative plans for a graduation program for those who successfully complete the courses were discussed by the committee.

Starting next month, pamphlets covering complete details of the program will be furnished to clubs throughout the city. Anyone in the vicinity of Marion who is interested may get a pamphlet at the high school, the Marion Chamber of Commerce and the Ohio State Employment Service.

Floyd P. Gehres, supervisor of vocational education at the high school who was elected chairman of the advisory committee, announced that if there is a demand for courses not already set up, every effort will be made to organize additional classes.

Committee Members

Other members of the committee are: C. J. Roberts of the Marion Power Shovel Co.; Fred B Scherff, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service office; Hugh E. Webster, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce; Robert Ruth of the Huber Mfg. Co.; Ellis Oiler of the CIO; Ray Beverly of the AFL; William Bland of Commercial Steel Casting Co.; Edward Baxter of Pollak Steel Co.; Thomas Clark of Clark Metal Products; Robert G. Haldeman of Probst Supply Co.; Emmett Osterholt of Arro Expansion Bolt Co.; Thomas Stanton of Marion Industries; Cecil W. Gabler, principal of the high school; Superintendent of Schools Lester L. Dickey; Miss Marie Wolf of the Altrusa Club; Mrs. John Rinnert of the PTA city council; Rev. Harrison Ludwig of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church; Marion Brown of the Inter-Club Council; Mrs. William Barnhouse of the Business and Professional Women's Club; Miss Lillian Plack, secretary of the Marion County Red Cross Chapter, and Miss Virginia Gettys, supervisor in the Ohio State Employment Service office.

The meeting Monday night opened with introducing the advisory committee members and brief remarks by Mr. Gabler on the five objectives of the adult education program: To maintain and improve acquired skills and interests; to furnish worthwhile avocational or leisure time activities; to provide an opportunity for better citizenship; to serve as a guide by enabling men and women to "sample" different types of work; to cope with problems which are not encountered until adulthood, such as the rearing of children, marital adjustment and how to create a happy home life.

Following the election of Mr. Gehres, a report was read by Miss Gettys, temporary secretary, and Mr. Gehres spoke briefly covering the duties of the committee, factors which point to an increased enrollment in the 1952 courses, and a resume of the 1951 courses and enrollment.

Marion Patrol Reports Two Area Mishaps

The state highway patrol reported two accidents Wednesday afternoon. Neither involved serious damage or injury.

Two cars parked in the Chivington parking lot at Routes 98 and 30-S east of Marion were slightly damaged at 3:25 when a car driven by Jerry W. Wiant, 68, of Lima left the highway and plunged through a fence owned by Jack Chivington.

The patrol said Wiant apparently lost control of the vehicle on the curve. The auto plunged through the fence and struck a parked auto owned by William J. Reible, 31, of Jefferson St. The force of the impact knocked the Reible car into another parked auto owned by J. H. McGinnis, 36, of Franconia Ave. Minor damage resulted to all three cars.

The patrol reported another three-car accident at 4:04 p.m. one mile west of Iberia on Route 30. A car driven by Donald O. James 34, of Iberia was slowing for traffic in front of it when it was struck from the rear by an auto driven by Albert Roy Osborne, 35, of Curtisville, Pa. The Osborne car was then struck by a car driven by Daniel F. Irvin of Marion, Ind. The patrol reported slight damage to all three cars.

George Kennan Controversial Figure

Philosopher Gets Truman Nod as Moscow Envoy

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Associated Press News Analyst

For some years the United States has been sending military men as ambassadors to Moscow. President Truman now proposes to send a philosopher, and one who recently has stirred up some controversy.

(Tagging a man as a philosopher should not be taken as prima facie evidence that he is impractical, though the word has taken on that connatation among many Americans. They know vaguely about Plato, but hardly at all of John Dewey or George Santayana, or that the atom bomb is a product of philosophy.)

George Kennan is certainly not an impractical man. It was he who, five years ago, put into a few brief sentences the idea of "patient but firm and vigilant containment of Russian expansive tendencies" which has been at the core of American foreign policy ever since.

No Real Change

The suggestion that he become ambassador to Moscow to succeed several generals and admirals represents no real change in approach to Russia, however. American ambassadors in Moscow have little impact at the Kremlin. They do, however, have some impact on the State Department through their assessment of current events in Russia.

From this standpoint, Kennan is an expert, with broad experience in Russian affairs both from service there and in the State Department. He has been on leave of absence for two years as a member of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, which is something of a sanctuary for philosophers. The time of his return to duty coincides with the approaching retirement of Admiral Kirk from Moscow.

The controversy in which Kennan is now involved is one among the historical philosophers rather than something which Congress would know anything about or which might cause any question about his appointment.

Policy Views

He recently published a little book of speeches and essays on American foreign policy since 1900. In it he espouses a view that American policy should be based on the hard facts of the world power situation, avoiding moralistic slogans and squeamishness, though not advocating immorality. Several of the historians have taken this view recently. Others, assisted especially by Acheson and Dulles, take the view that the only thing which can bring change in world affairs, the only way in which American policy can be different from those of all the powers which have gone before it and failed, is the combination by which American interests are approached from the standpoint of traditional American morals.

One thing is fairly clear, however. If there is a possibility of peace through change in Russia, and if the West is to take full advantage of the first indications of such change, someone like Kennan will be among the first to tip us off. Philosophers don't permit their minds to freeze.

Broken Jaw Protection

Doctor's Face Mask Enables Injured Gridders To Play

DALLAS—An Englishman who died two years ago was indirectly responsible for the development of a protective device which appears destined to find general use in football.

The Englishman, a farmer near Independence, La., asked Dr. M. T. Marietta, a dentist, to fashion him a plastic nose. The man had suffered a disease that had destroyed his nose.

Live Model Used

Dr. Marietta prevailed upon another resident of Independence to be his model. The man, like the patient, was tall, thin and hollow-cheeked. The dentist made a mold of the man's face and then formed a crude plastic mask to be attached to the Englishman's face with metal hooks fitting inside the cheek bones.

The Englishman was content with the results of the experiment and wore his false nose until he died.

Dr. Marietta now resides in Dallas and lately has moved to develop the face mask. Last year he fitted Bob Smith, Texas A & M. football star, with one for protection of his broken jaw suffered in the Baylor game in mid-season. This year the entire Texas A. and M. football team has been fitted out with the masks for protection of the nose and teeth.

As soon as Dr. Marietta learned of the broken jaw sustained by Drake University's famed halfback Johnny Bright, he dispatched two of his special masks to the player.

Deluged

Dr. Marietta has been virtually deluged with inquiries and orders. The University of California used 30; Tulane University, seven; Commerce, Tex., High, 21; Hardin-Simons University, six. A high school in Marblehead, Mass., ordered one to protect the face of a star player. Bill Rippey, Southern Methodist player, has one. Dr. Marietta produced two for Jesuit High in Dallas; they were for two players who wore glasses.

Coach Ray George of Texas A. & M. is quite enthusiastic about the mask which is made of transparent plexiglass and, while protecting the nose and teeth, does not obstruct the vision. "The mask overcomes the tendency of the football player to lower his head," says George. "That should reduce the number of injuries received by players who drop their heads when they tackle."

Dr. Marietta has turned his home into a mask factory. He has made as many as 53 in one day and now has a large supply on hand.

The dentist actually started developing the mask in 1947 when Lex Cook, coach of the Dallas hockey team, asked him to make one for a player who had suffered a broken nose.

Contribution To Football

Occasionally, as the word spread around athletic circles, Dr. Marietta would receive another order. When Lindy Berry, Texas Christian quarterback, broke his jaw during the 1949 season, Dr. Marietta offered to make a mask for him. He devised one which Coach L. R. Meyer of TCU terms "a fine contribution to football."

So now Dr. Marietta is in the mask business. He has obtained a United States patent and is applying for international patents.

Some day, the dentist's mask may be standard equipment for football players and other athletes participating in sports where the danger of facial and head injuries is prevalent.

Truman Seen Holding Fire on Taft Charges

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—Sen. Taft, trying to persuade the Republicans to make him their presidential candidate, has been going around the country banging away at the Truman administration's policies at home and abroad.

He's had a lot to say about President Truman's foreign policy. And, watching this, some people have wondered how long Mr. Truman would let him go without pitching in with a few words on Taft's own ideas on foreign policy.

True, the Democrats haven't been exactly silent on the subject of Taft, who last week published a book attempting to explain his views. As soon as the book appeared Democratic Sen. McMahon of Connecticut ripped into Taft and his book.

The things which McMahon had to say—quotes from Taft's record in the Senate and the stands he took on the big issues—were too plentiful and too well-organized to have been thrown together overnight. A lot of research and work went into them.

* * *

IT WAS THOUGHT at the time that with this McMahon broadside the Democrats had decided to open up on the Ohio Republican. Maybe so. But the President himself still has said very little although, since Mr. Truman has shown a pretty short temper with Taft in the past, no one suspects him of bashfulness.

So when Mr. Truman flew up from his Key West vacation to address the Woman's National Democratic Club last night in Washington it was thought that maybe now the President would fire a shot. His speech was billed beforehand as a major political speech.

It wasn't. It was pretty mild. Mr. Truman never once mentioned Taft by name. But you could almost see the President getting restless over his silence on the senator, for he left no doubt in his speech he was shooting at Taft, even though not naming him.

Upholding his own foreign policy, the President said "since I have been President . . . I have consulted regularly with leaders of both parties, Democrats and Republicans alike."

THIS COULD HAVE been interpreted as Mr. Truman's reply to Taft's charge that the President went over the head of Congress in sending troops to Koren. But Taft was certainly never one of those who was "regularly" consulted by Mr. Truman on foreign affairs. So far as I know Mr. Truman never consulted him at all, Mr. Truman continued:

". . . I want to keep our foreign policy out of domestic politics. I am happy to say that there are many patriotic Republicans who have the same view of this question . . . I might add that these are the Republicans—in Congress and out—who know most about foreign affairs.

"But I am sorry to say that there is another group of Republicans—a group who want to put foreign policy into domestic politics. They want to play with dynamite and they may have their way. I don't know how the Republican convention will decide the matter next July."

Then the President said performance in foreign policy is the best campaign issue the Democrats have.

* * *

THE CLOSEST MR. TRUMAN came to toeing off on Taft personally was near the end of his speech when he said the Republicans and their supporters would spend more money to win this next campaign than was ever spent in any election.

"The attack," he said, "will be well - organized — and well financed. We've had a sample in the congressional elections of last year. We saw how the special interests poured money into Ohio last year to elect a Republican senator." That was Taft.

Taft promptly replied: "It is the Truman party which is the beneficiary of the money of special interests and of millions of dollars of taxpayers' money used for political propaganda x x x."

N.Y. Stock Quotations

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—(AP)—An irregular course was traced yesterday by the stock market with trading exceptionally quiet.

After a higher start the market in the afternoon eased off in various areas until it presented a thoroughly mixed appearance.

There was about a 2-point spread higher or lower with the bulk of the issues only fractionally changed.

The market put its best foot forward in some of the rails, steels, motors, and radio-television issues. The comparison, however, was a matter of degree.

Northern Pacific did better than most rail and oil leaders. Goodrich and American Cyanamid both suffered from selling following dividend announcements.

American Sugar lost more than 3 points.

Twentieth Century-Fox sagged but Universal Pictures got ahead.

Lower were Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, United Aircraft, Anaconda Copper, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil (N. J.), Gulf Oil, Johns-Manville, and U.S. Gypsum.

Higher were such issues as Amerada Petroleum, Bethlehem Steel, Packard Motors, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, American Smelting, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse Electric, International Paper, Admiral Corp., and Radio Corp.

GRAIN MARKET

Local Grain Market

Wednesday market after 2 p.m.: Wheat 2.40; 32 lbs. white oats .97.

Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, Nov. 22—(AP)—Wheat found some bullish inspiration in the run of news yesterday, but nothing else did. The bread cereal ended with gains averaging around a cent after having been up nearly 3 cents at the opening.

Feed grains were quite weak, although ending above their lows for the day. The November soybean and lard contracts showed flashes of strength on belated short-covering. Trading in these deliveries ended yesterday. Deferred bean and lard contracts got nowhere.

Wheat closed ½-1⅛ higher, corn ½-1¾ lower, oats ½-⅞ lower, rye (new style) unchanged to 1 cent lower, soybeans 1¼ lower to 1¼ higher and lard 25 cents lower to 30 cents a hundred pounds higher.

CLAY PIPE CHAMP From behind a cloud of smoke, Mark Horr 54, challenges "any man, woman, child or beast" in the U. S. to a clay pipe smoking contest. He outpuffed 10 other contenders in Albany, N. One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

The fellow who can't find something to be thankful for today just isn't trying.

* * *

We have people pouring in every day who are thankful just for a sight of the Statue of Liberty which we take for granted.

* * *

Of course Miss Liberty's torch is smoking a little but there's nothing wrong with it that a little wick-trimming won't fix.

* * *

But busting a wish-bone today won't do it.

* * *

A historian pointed out the other day that no republic since the beginning of history ever has lasted as long as 200 years and as we haven't broken the record yet let's not assume that the oil supply for liberty's lamp is guaranteed to eternity.

* * *

That's a cold fact to serve up with a warm dinner but life is not all warm mince pie . . . on the table or in the sky.

* * *

Let us give thanks for what we have, then let's peel our coats and fight to keep it.

A Foreign Policy For Americans

By Senator Robert A. Taft

CHAPTER 7

The Russian Menace. How Do We Meet It Throughout the World?

(PART 2)

I HAVE YET to see anyone who has been able to describe clearly just what a third world war would be like.

One thing seems to be certain: it would not be like World War I or II. Air forces and the atomic bomb would play a greater part than ever before, but no one can measure exactly what their strength would be. Certain principles, however, appear to be fairly clear.

SENATOR TAFT

Our first consideration must be the defense of America.

It seems obvious that the immediate problem of defending this country depends upon control of the sea and control of the air.

Whether war can be ended by air power alone may be open to question, but certainly sea and air power can achieve a complete protection while other forces are being developed to meet whatever goals may seem to be desirable in a third world war.

Of course, an Army of reasonable size is absolutely essential. We must have it for the defense of the American continent and our island possessions. A land Army is necessary for the defense of air bases, further defense of islands near the continental shores, and for such occasional extensions of action into Europe, Asia, or Africa as promise success in selected areas.

But it need not be anything like as large an Army as would be necessary to begin tomorrow a land war on the continent of Europe or the continent of Asia.

A Shortsighted Policy

The fact that the Air Force has deteriorated is due solely to the shortsightedness of this Administration and the Pentagon policy, which, in substance, refused any increase in Air Force unless corresponding increases occurred in the Army and Navy.

Until the Korean war the President still insisted on holding the Air Force to 48 groups. The power of the land generals was sufficient to hold down the Air Force unless the budget could provide a corresponding increase in land forces. Now the increase is to be balanced by an even larger increase in the land forces.

Not only is an all-powerful air force the best possible defense for the United States, but it is also the best deterrent to war. The Russians are not going to be deterred by land armies until such armies are built up to a strong defensive force completely able to throw back armies of Russia and its satellites, and they can always attack before that point is reached. They know that the destruction of their principal communications, bases, and industrial developments by atomic bombs may make it infinitely more difficult for them to succeed in any war.

Every consideration, therefore of American defense and also of the insurance of peace depends upon the development of an air force more efficient and more effective than the world has ever seen.

A superiority in air and sea forces throughout the world can achieve other purposes than mere defense. It can protect all island countries, Africa and South America. It can furnish effective assistance to all those nations which desire to maintain their freedom on the continent. It can achieve a balance of power under which more peaceful relations throughout the world can constantly be developed.

Can't Abandon Others

While defense of this country is our first consideration, I do not agree with those who think we can completely abandon the rest of the world and rely solely upon the defense of this continent. In fact, the very thesis of an effective control of sea and air by the free nations requires that we do interest ourselves in Europe and the Near East and North Africa and the Far East, so that Communist influence may not extend to areas from which it is still possible to exclude it by many methods other than land armies.

It seems to me that our battle against communism is in fact a world-wide battle and must be fought on the world stage. What I object to is undertaking to fight that battle, in the first instance, primarily on the vast land areas of the continent of Europe or the continent of Asia, where we are at the greatest possible disadvantage in a war with Russia.

The first principle of military strategy is not to fight on the enemy's chosen battleground, where he has his greatest strength. We could not have a better lesson than has been taught us in Korea.

It seems to me that by reasonable alliance with Britain, Australia, and Canada the control of sea and air can establish a power which never can be challenged by Russia and which can to a great extent protect Europe, as it has been protected now for five years through fear of what sea and air power can accomplish against Russia.

Power Over Vast Area

There is no need for a specific line of defense in every section of the world, but we can exercise a power for peace over a vast area. If the Russians realize that our power in the final outcome of war cannot be challenged except on the continent of Eurasia, and perhaps not there in the final issue, and that it can do real damage to their own nation with the atomic bomb and otherwise, their purpose of military aggression in Eurasia itself may well wither.

If they are convinced that they cannot achieve world conquest by military means they are likely to turn to their old love of propaganda and infiltration. Gradually, peaceful relations in Europe may grow again, for the desire of human beings for peace and comfort and normal human relations is a powerful force which will constantly reassert itself.

I do not believe that our sea and air power should be used for aggressive purposes, but I do believe it should be available to assist those nations which ask for assistance to defend themselves against Communist aggression, to the extent that such power can be successfully and effectively used.

In the first place, we should be willing to assist with our own sea and air forces any island nations which desire our help. Among those islands are Japan, Formosa, the Philippines, Indonesia, Australia, and New Zealand; on the Atlantic side, Great Britain, of course.

Not Island Alone

The power of great sea and air forces is not necessarily limited to island nations. The policy I suggest certainly does not abandon to Communist conquest the continental nations.

In the first place, we give economic assistance to many such nations, providing they want that assistance and use it effectively against communism. We give arms, as we are bound to do under the Atlantic Pact and as we are now doing in Indo-China, in Greece, in Turkey, in Formosa. An adequate modern air force should be able to bomb the communications of any aggressor, its army and air bases, and its manufacturing plants and thus not only deter aggression but seriously interfere with its success.

Probably strategic air power cannot prevent a land advance, but it can certainly play a powerful part in the defense against such an advance and in the ultimate outcome of the war.

The commitment of a substantial American land army to continental soil is a much more serious problem. Broadly speaking, it is far less practical. Its expense is capable of indefinite expansion, once we are involved, as we have seen even in the Korean War. It is fighting the enemy on his chosen ground.

As a general policy, I do not believe that in time of peace we should commit American troops to continental soil, or in time of war unless we are reasonably certain of success through the efforts of our own Army and our allies.

A Dangerous Experiment

The entire continent of Africa is connected with Asia, and certainly we might have to assist in defending the Suez Canal, as a means of maintaining our connections by sea and of defending Africa, where there are many strategic materials, valuable air bases, and a threat to South America.

It may be possible to assist Spain. I should suppose that Singapore and the Malay peninsula could be defended by land troops if sea and air power is available on both sides of the peninsula.

The extension of such aid by land troops, however, is a dangerous experiment, as we found in Korea. I doubt that, on principle, we should enter into any definite commitments in advance in time of peace, or undertake the job at all, unless we are sure it is well within our capacity and almost certain of success.

* * *

French Fried Shrimp Can Be Hit of Party

LET'S FACE IT. Shrimp is so popular with everyone that its presence at any dinner means a sure hit for the hostess. And luckily for us it can be canned, frozen and shipped fresh so that it's an all-season, all-over-the-country food.

The versatile morsels are excellent in creamed dishes, cocktails, casseroles, salads and sauces, but one of the country's favorite recipe for the favored crustacean remains French fried shrimp. Equally delicious as an appetizer or main course, it's the conversation catch of the party.

FRENCH FRIED SHRIMP

1½ lbs. raw shrimp (fresh or frozen)
1 cup milk
1 egg
Fine dry bread crumbs
⅛ t salt
Dash pepper
1 t paprika

Shuck shrimp. With a sharp knife, cut down the back of each shrimp, being careful not to cut all the way through. Remove black vein. Beat milk and egg together. Mix bread crumbs, salt, pepper and paprika. Dip shrimp in egg and then in bread crumbs. Cook in deep hot fat (375 F) until brown, about 3 minutes. Shrimp will rise to top of fat when cooked. Drain on paper towelling. Makes six servings, if used as an appetizer; two or three as the main course.

Scout Honor Court Set at Galion

GALION—Court of Honor for the Galion District, Boy Scouts of America, has been set for Nov. 29 at First Methodist Church. This was announced at a meeting of the Galion District Committee held recently at Senior High School with bert Campbell, chairman, presiding.

The nominating commitee reported that election of officers will take place at the December meeting of the committee. Plans are being made to have dinner-meetings for the committee during the coming year.

The Fall Round-Up program which has set a quota of 31 new members for Galion's six Boy Scout troops will be completed by the first of the year, it was announced.

A successful training course for cub leaders of Galion, Crestline and Shelby is nearing completion at Crestline under the direction of Murrall Longstreth, Galion cubmaster, it was announced.

Scout Commissioner Eric Brooke told the group that he has made official visits to all but one of the Cub Packs and Boy Scout troops of Galion District.

LONG TENURE ENDED

THERESA, N. Y. — (UP) — A 100-acre farm has been sold after being in one family more than 125 years. Ivan Schell, a great-great-grandson of the pioneer owner, Conrade Zellar, sold the farm to Walter C. June.

For guiding us through the maze of life, allowing us the time, and fortitude to carry on a program of honest effort, fair dealings, and the building of —

A GOOD REPUTATION

This is a coveted prize, won only by demonstration and proof, throughout the years, of absolute honesty, integrity, dependability and forthrightness . . . of word and deed.

For giving us the strength and courage to work, strive, and protect our name, and that reputation for the years to come.

For allowing us to continue to serve the people of this area always with honesty and courtesy, to gain further, and keep, the respect, and confidence of the public, in any and all dealings with them.

We give thanks for the business, the friends we have made, the confidence displayed in the past, by you folks who have allowed us to demonstrate our policy and business ethics.

We give thanks for the privilege of having served you, and ask the privilege of serving you again, and we hope a good many new people too, in the coming days, weeks, months and years. May we continue to forge undying bonds of confidence and good will between ourselves and our customers.

GETTING READY TO GREET SANTA. Mammoth parades in most major cities are welcoming Santa Claus and usher in the holiday season. Mighty Mouse (top), biggest balloon of them all, will march in New York's Macy's 25th annual parade. He is 70 feet long, has a 42-foot arm spread and requires 10,000 cubic feet of helium to keep him floating above the crowds. Detroit's J. L. Hudson company also is getting ready for its annual parade. The Giant (bottom) in Jack and the Beanstalk is getting his hair from designer Jepson.

Metals Rain On Earth From Stratosphere

CHICAGO (UP)—Photographic emulsions sent into the stratosphere in giant plastic balloons show that some nuclear particles which make up the cosmic ray have masses greater than that of iron.

Dr. Herman Yagoda of the National Institute of Health made the disclosure in a paper read to the American Institute of Physics.

Yagoda said heavy tracks were found in the emulsions and that they were made by "heavy" nuclear particles. These rare visitors from outer space had not been observed previously because of their absorption or destruction in the stratosphere.

Yagoda said such studies indicate that the earth is constantly receiving a rain of hydrogen nuclei of tremendous energy and a sparse dusting with most of the members of the periodic system of elements, including copper, bromine and even tin.

Researcher Forecasts Better Hearing Aids

CHICAGO (UP)—Experiments on the human mastoid may result in the development of more efficient hearing aids for the deaf, according to a paper presented to the Acoustical Society of America.

The author is Dr. Ernest K. Franke, a biophysicist at the Wright-Patterson Air Force base.

Until recently, he said, knowledge of the mechanical response of the mastoid has been incomplete.

Researchers at the aero medical laboratory, he said, have been able to gather accurate data on the mastoid's mechanical properties.

That, he said, will facilitate the design of more reliable hearing aids, and will permit better calibration of existing hearing aids by means of artificial mastoids.

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Certain Rheumatic Conditions

Good news has recently come for sufferers from certain types of rheumatism. Some of you may have read or heard about the new drug, pregnenolone, which has been used for rheumatoid arthritis. Results have been reported as being good in some cases. However, once there is X-ray evidence of joint damage and the arthritis is more than a year old, pregnenolone has little effect.

Recently, this drug has been tried in certain cases of osteo-arthritis, or degenerative arthritis, where there is some swelling, tenderness and pain of the soft tissues around the diseased joints. Pregnenolone proved effective in relieving these painful symptoms.

Soft tissue rheumatism is a disease in which there is inflammation and swelling of the connective tissues. It includes such conditions as acute bursitis, or inflammation of a sac containing fluid which lubricates the muscles and tissues; myositis, or an inflammation of the muscles; and tenosynovitis, or inflammation around a tendon.

Recently, I saw a report of fifteen cases of acute bursitis without any calcium deposit that were treated with daily injections of pregnenolone. Twelve patients were improved, while three showed no improvement. Eight patients having acute bursitis with calcium deposit received the same treatment. All but two showed improvement. Cases of chronic bursitis with calcium deposit did not show any marked improvement.

Up to now, we have not heard of any patients treated with pregnenolone who have had bad reactions. A few persons may complain of feeling tired after taking it. If the patient feels nauseous, treatment should be stopped.

Pregnenolone is best taken by injection. It could be taken by mouth, but a much larger dose would be required, and the results are usually not quite so effective as by injection.

Only your physician can best tell whether pregnenolone might help your rheumatic condition, and if so, he will determine the best method for you to follow in taking the drug.

Questions and Answers

M. D. B.: What are the symptoms of an irritable colon?

Answer: The symptoms of an irritable colon usually consist of intermittent attacks of diarrhea and constipation. There may be pain, usually in the left lower side, just before a bowel movement.

The treatment of an irritable colon consists of the use of a bland diet and as much freedom from worry, strain, and overork as possible. A patient with this condition should have as much rest as possible, plenty of fresh air and sunshine, and moderate outdoor exercise.

However, before any treatment is instituted, a complete examination should be made of anyone suspected of having this condition, to rule out any other reasons for the symptoms.

Crackdown On Phone Call Fakers In Marysville

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE — The telephone company here has started a crackdown on a juvenile problem—"let's call 'em up."

Last week an appliance dealer delivered a new refrigerator to a home on the strength of an "order" that that was placed as a teenage prank, and a plumbing firm sent out an employe on a fake "come quick, the basement is flooded" call. There have been other incidents reported.

Willard F. Palmer, phone company manager, says: "If we can find the guilty parties we will remove the phone and prosecute them or their parents."

Radio and Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Formula for Mr. Shriner

The problem of what to do with Herb Shriner, one of the more serious dilemmas of our generation, has occupied the faculties of some of the deeper thinkers in television for some time now. It's a terrible problem. Shriner is at his best when he walks out in front of a curtain and tells his gentle stories about home life in Indiana — unassisted by Milton Berle, singing dogs or dancing girls.

John Crosby

And that ain't television, Mannie. It's got to have Milton Berle, singing dogs or dancing girls, preferably all three. Yet these ingredients are so essentially foreign to Mr. Shriner's personality that other avenues had to be explored. The man simply couldn't stand out there and be funny or people might die laughing and besides how would the audience get a chance to slip out to the icebox and get a beer?

It had to have a formula and I'm happy to report that some one has come up with a pretty good one. The Shriner formula, now encased in a new show called "Herb Shriner Time" (ABC-TV 9 p.m. EST Thursday), reminds me a good deal of a crack made by the late Ernie Byfield, proprietor of the Pump Room, which rather specializes in flaming foods. Byfield was once sitting in the Pump Room with Lucius Beebe, who was a little perplexed by the abundance of small fires leaping up from samovars all over the room. "Why all the flames?" he inquired.

"Well," said Byfield, "the customers like it and it doesn't hurt the food very much."

Similarly, the Shriner formula satisfies the requirements of this game called television and it doesn't hurt Shriner very much. The comedian strolls out in front of the cameras and starts talking about, say, the local postmaster. "We didn't mind when he read all the mail but when he got to answering it . . ." Presently, this leads into a story about a local lady who is long on geneology but short on cash. "She'd be in the 400 if we had that many people here," says Shriner. Her daughter is in love with the son of a man who is in the reverse position, awash with money but unlimned in the social register.

THAT, OF COURSE, is a story that has been told before. You might say it's the basic story of all time which isn't to be held against it. Presently the characters appear and the task of getting these gene-crossed lovers together assumes dramatic shape. While they're acting out their problems, Shriner wanders in and out of the proceedings, using the "Our Town" technique as narrator. That is, he's sometimes invisible and unheard, sometimes part of the plot.

The plots are likely to lead you all over town—into the local barber shop, the library, the city council, and a lot of front porches—and you meet a good many of the townsfolk on the way. The stories themselves are, I'm afraid, rather sticky with sentiment but they are relieved and enlivened by Shriner's comments about his town—"Our town got a college, too. Sort of made up for not having a high school."—and about its people. "Being dumb like that he almost had to get rich or he couldn't make a living."

In anyone else's hands this assignment would be either pretentious or silly but Mr. Shriner is heavily endowed with good looks, charm, a wonderful sense of timing, and a grin that would melt an iceberg at 50 paces. Sentimentality that might ordinarily be a little trying becomes instead touching and, at the same time, amusing.

MY ENTHUSIASM for Mr. S.'s comments are not entirely untempered, though. Lately, conceivably because he burns up an awful lot of material, Mr. Shriner has been uttering jokes which are not unlike those of any other comedian, jokes on which the fingerprints of gagwriters are clearly visable. I suppose it was inevitable that the writers would gather around Mr. Shriner but I hope he keeps them decently in hand.

Incidentally, the comedian does his own commercials, which are as deft and funny as any you'll find on the air. The sponsor is Arrow shirts and Mr. Shriner likes to ramble through the factory where the shirts are being made, talking away about the materials and the women employes: "These girls have been here a long time. Well, they lose one now and then. Girls go on making shirts for men this way—they get so they want to meet one." I don't know if it sells any shirts but it's certainly nice on the audience and the sponsor deserves a nice little kiss for permitting it.

Avenoo Melodrama

By FRANK TRIPP

AT THE turn of the century Railroad Avenue, now a shambles, was tailing off a checkered career and was notorious throughout the East. It was Southern New York's and Northern Pennsylvania's Barbary Coast during the lumbering days. Its notoriety predated the Civil War.

Reporters used to determine the stamina of roistering lumbermen by the address of the dive back of which they were found drunk, robbed and often drugged and beaten in the alley. The lower the number the farther one had progressed down the "avenoo," and the better man he was.

While at one end of the long street were reared many fine citizens, the other end harbored the lowest type of humanity. The district was largely supported by burly lumberjacks who came out of the woods once in three months, rarin' to go.

TRIPP

I caught the avenue assignment near the end of its heyday. One morning my city editor led a sturdy countryman to my desk and said to him, "Tell your story to this man; maybe he can help you." The husky young farmer handed me a picture of a buxom lass and said, "I'm looking for my girl. She has been gone two weeks and her mother is almost crazy."

"He thinks she may be among your playmates up the avenue," my boss, Earl Dean, said to me.

The heartbroken man was avoiding the police, thinking to protect his daughter's reputation. He and his wife came to the city and had spent days of futile search; then someone told them that the newspaper might help them.

* * *

THAT NIGHT I took the picture up the avenue with me. In about the third place I found the girl. She was seated at a table with an oldtime female denizen of avenue back rooms.

"See that young girl back there with Pansy?" I said to the greasy proprietor of the dump. 'You better get her out before you're stuck with her. Here's her picture. Her father wants her."

"He can have her. She'll never be any good to me," was his reply.

"Been around here long?" I asked him.

"In and out for a couple of weeks," he said, "and she ain't turned over a nickel for the place."

"She don't know what it's all about," he declared.

"Okay, then do this," I told him. "At exactly 11 o'clock tonight push her through the back door into the alley, and lock her out."

"So's you can have her, eh?" sneered the skunk.

"Cut the wisecracks," I fired back. "Put her out or I'll turn the heat on your grand palace."

I phoned the father to be on hand at five minutes to 11, with a hack. He was, and his wife was with him.

"You've found her?" he entreated.

"You'll have her in five minutes," I told him.

In that five minutes a strange thing happened. The nerve-racked father put his strong hands on my shoulders, then shook and clutched me till it hurt. With all the venom and earnestness a man can muster he said to me:

"I know what you're going to do. You're going to give me back my girl, then you're going to write one if your stinking stories in the paper and ruin her reputation. By God, if you do I'll kill you and be proud to hang for it. Give me back that picture!"

"Thanks," was all that I could muster to say as I handed over the photograph.

THE PIG WHO ran the brothel came clean. At exactly 11 o'clock the door opened. A protesting girl was thrust into the alley and into the arms of her awaiting father.

From my station in the shadows I saw her led to the hack. Inside two women with arms about each other wept hysterically. The hack drove away.

I walked around to the front door, went inside and said "Thanks" again; this time to the proprietor. At that moment I had more regard for him than for the ingrate who had just misjudged and threatened me.

Within a week there came a letter. It made amends and overflowed with gratitude. All was well in the little farm home up in Steuben County.

Time and "the avenoo" marched on. And then one day Earl Dean dropped a clipping from a country paper on my desk. "Here's word from your girl friend," he said.

The item told of a happy wedding in the village church; and ended, "The popular couple will spend their honeymoon at Niagara Falls."

Afraid of Lightning? Go to Rhode Island

BOSTON—(UP)—Rhode Island is the safest place in the country to live as far as lightning is concerned, according to the New England Journal of Medicine.

The state has not recorded a lightning-caused death since 1936, the journal said.

About 250 persons are killed by lightning each year, the journal said. Nine out of 10 fatalities from lightning occur in places with 2,500 inhabitants or less, and four times as many men as women are killed by bolts.

PLAYS VARIED ROLES

NEWTON, Mass.—(UP)—By day Miss Lydia Iole Solimene is freshman adviser and instructor of business subjects at Lasell Junior College. By night she is a disc jockey for a Boston radio station.

THEIR KINGDOM IS PARADISE. Enroute to the Paradise Islands where they will reign as "King" and "Queen," John Clunies-Ross and his bride, the former Miss Daphne Parkinson, prepare to board their plane at a London airport. "Her Highness" will be the only white woman among 1,800 inhabitants on the palm-studded, coral isles, located in the Indian Ocean.

Dog Cemetery Set Up in Florida

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(UP)—St. Petersburg has a cemetery for dogs.

The cemetery was established by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Burbank, retired Joliet, Ill., couple who were upset when they discovered there was no suitable place to bury their dog when it died.

The nine-acre tract is called "the happy hunting grounds." Three dogs have been buried in the little cemetery. Their graves are marked with simple stone markers.

NURSES A-PLENTY

MAYSVILLE, Ky.—(UP)—Mr. and Mrs. John R. Brannen should never have to hire a nurse in case of illness. The Brannen's five daughters are registered nurses.

Doctors for an insurance company say three out of every five persons would like to reduce but only one out of five has seriously tried to do it.

Gives Kentucky U. $400,000

Student Paper Builds New School

LEXINGTON, Ky.—(AP)— A student-operated weekly newspaper has given the University of Kentucky a gift valued at $400,000.

But to the many students and advisors who have put the Kentucky Kernel to press for over 25 years, it is a dream come true which far exceeds the monetary value involved.

Bonds Cover All Debt

Half of the building's construction cost has been paid from accumulated profits of the student-operated newspaper. Revenue bonds covering the remainder of the cost are to be retired from future earnings of the paper.

From a modest beginning in 1924, when the Kentucky Kernel purchased a new type-setter, the student newspaper had amassed a profit of $145,780.38 by June 30, 1949.

The building of a printing plant for the university first was envisioned 24 years ago by the late Enoch Grehan, head of the Department of Journalism until his death in 1937.

Costs Compelled Action

Prior to 1924, the Kentucky Kernel had been published through the services of commercial printers. High costs threatened the continued publication of the newspaper.

Prof. Grehan, determined not to let the newspaper go under, proposed that the student newspaper purchase a type-setting machine on a deferred payment plan, letting earnings of the paper pay off the debt.

After considerable discussion, university approval was given and Prof. Grehan personally took responsibility, placing his signature on a note for the $2,000 debt. This was the beginning of the project.

Small Press Was Acquired

In 1925, a small two-page press was purchased, further increasing the indebtedness, but augmenting the earning power of the newspaper.

STUDENTS ON THE STEPS to the new building their paper built for the University of Kentucky.

Slowly, piece by piece, year by year, the plant expanded.

But the journalism department and Kernel printing plant also was plagued by another serious problem—the lack of space.

Offices of the school and plant were spread over the university. They were shuffled from basement to basement, wherever room could be found.

The board of trustees last June graduated the Department of Journalism into a School of Journalism.

$2,000 Parlayed To $200,000

From the modest beginning of $2,000 worth of equipment, the printing plant now is valued at approximately $200,000. All university printing now is sent to the campus plant.

The ground floor of the two-story red brick structure houses the printing plant plus the business office and advertising office of the Kernel.

Canadians Tap Niagara Power

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont.—(UP)—A tunnel large enough to "swallow" a four-story building, stretching for more than five miles, will be built to feed water into Ontario Hydro's new generating plant at Queenston, Ont.

The $182,000,000 power project, expected to stretch over the next four years, is one of the largest engineering jobs in the world today. When completed, the new underground waterway will be the largest of its kind anywhere.

The development involves, besides construction of the long pressure tunnel, the building of an open-cut canal about two and one-half miles long and the erection of a generating station with seven 100,000-horsepower units giving a total output of 525,000 kilowatts.

It was made possible last year when the United States and Canada signed a 50-year treaty. After sufficient water has been provided to assure the scenic character of the majestic falls, the two countries share the remainder.

"JUNK" YIELDS $6,000

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—(UP)—Junk can be valuable. Police recovered a badly battered safe in a junk yard and found more than $6,000 inside. The safe had been discarded by thieves who failed to open it.

EYEGLASSES REQUIRED

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(UP)—Louis Wright Jr. was driving carefully along the street when a policeman whistled him to a halt, then hauled him into court where he pleaded guilty and paid a $2 fine. The charge was violating a clause on his license requiring him to wear eyeglasses when driving.

States Trying Rubber Roads

CHICAGO (UP) — Rubber roads are becoming quite common, in the experimental stage at least.

The American Public Works Association reports that an increasing number of cities and states have been giving rubber roads a tryout since the end of the war.

In Massachusetts, highway builders announced plans for experiments with asphalt-rubber topping on an additional 100 miles of roadway in various parts of the state.

Highway engineers currently are trying powdered rubber as a mix with asphalt to provide smoother roads while at the same time giving a less slippery surface.

Engineers believe rubber will help overcome asphalt's chronic softness in summer and brittleness in winter and will tend to allow for expansion and contraction with the seasons.

Akron, O., laid the first section of test rubber road in this country in 1947. Virginia, with a 1,000 foot stretch of rubber road near Richmond, was another pioneer.

Other test sections are being built in Texas and on state highways in Ohio. Cities which have stretches of rubber street include New York, Columbus, O., and Baltimore, Md.

United Mine Workers Union was organized in Columbus in 1890.

Old Farmer's Almanac Sees Cold January

The Old Farmer's Almanac, making its 1952 bow, is a gentle reminder that a new year is jjust around the corner.

Wearing the same yellow dress provided by Robert B. Thomas 160 years ago, the Almanac contains pertinent facts of the past and predictions for the future. Between the covers are found sturdy New England wit, recipes, poetic weather predictions, advertisements and choice New England pictures. The pages tell of nine seasons, spring, early summer, Summer, early fall, fall, early winter, winter, late winter and false spring.

January 1952 will find the last week fine and cold. From the 18th to the 25th it will be overcast and dull—with perhaps a thaw. From the 11th to the 18th there will be fair, cold days, followed by rain or snow or both. Groundhog day will be fair and clear and the end of March will be fine and warm. So says the Almanac.

In 1952 there will be four eclipses, two of the sun and two of the moon. Of those, only the partial eclipse of the moon on Feb. 10 will be visible in whole or in part from points in and east of the mountain time belt of the United States.

Come March 22 we are warned that "Spring's not here yet. Fair and mild, soon becomes wild." New Year's Day, Tuesday, Jan. 1, will see snow, as will Lincoln's and Washington's Birthdays. Memorial Day will be misty, and the Fourth of July will be clear. Thanksgiving 1952 will be stormy and Christmas will find rain or snow, according to the Almanac.

WyandotChristmas Workshop Held

Special to The Star

SYCAMORE — The Wyandot County Home demonstration council held a Christmas work shop in the Sycamore school gymnasium Nov. 14. It was under the supervision of Miss Priscilla Wright, the home demonstration agent of Upper Sandusky. Mrs. Fred Case of Sycamore was the general chairman.

The demonstrations of making flower candles, Christmas wrappings, plastic purses and home made Christmas decorations were in progress in the forenoon and most of the afternoon. Exhibits of home made rugs, textile paintings, and gifts from pen pals were also shown.

A short program was presented by the smaller school children in the afternoon and the Homemakers' chorus under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Van Buren sang Christmas carols during the evening program. The Rolland Purcost family presented Christmas stories. Organ music was provided throughout the day by Guy Moore.

Mt. Gilead Chamber Sets Christmas Season

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD—The Christmas season will officially start in Mt. Gilead Dec. 15, Arthur Breese, secretary of the Mt. Gilead Chamber of Commerce, announced recently.

Christmas decorations in the village will be placed shortly after Thanksgiving.

Harry Mettler has been named chairman of a committee for home decorations and Art Ward will head the Christmas Caroling committee.

Children from all the Morrow County schools will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a free movie at the Capitol Theatre starting Nov. 23.

Apply a mixture of soap and water to locate holes in an inner tube. Leaking air will blow telltale soap bubbles at the danger spot.

Husband and Wife Are Elected To Legislature In Mississippi

ASHLAND, Miss. -- (UP)—If Mr. and Mrs. John Farese have any squabbles during the next four years, they're liable to have quite an audience.

Farese and his attractive wife make up Mississippi's first husband-wife legislative team.

In this year's elections, Farese, a retiring state senator, was elected to represent Benton and Tippah Counties in the House of Representatives and his wife was elected a Benton County representative.

The 38-year-old Farese already was known as a vote-getter, having been elected prosecuting attorney and state senator. His 35 year old wife made her first venture into politics this year.

Farese said people who first thought his wife was "running on his coat-tails" changed their tune after hearing her speak. They decided maybe he was running on her "skirt-tails."

Good Speaker

For Mrs. Farese, a former school teacher, turned out to be quite a speaker.

The Fareses say each will vote as he or she thinks right, regardless of how the other votes. However, they expect to agree on major issues since "our ideas are a good bit alike."

A native of Lyon, Miss., Farese came south to play college football and stayed to get married.

After meeting his future wife, Farese took a quick liking to the south, got his law degree at the University of Mississippi and set up practice here, where his wife was teaching school.

Now he says there's no comparison between the south and New England and that once you've "tasted the wine of the south's friendliness, the oil of its hospitality, why then you won't even look to the north any more."

Farese already had announced for representative when his wife told him she wanted to talk to him.

Had to Listen

"Having been married some 14 years," he said, "I had no choice but to sit and listen."

She told him she had always thought of running for office and wanted to run for representative. He told her to go ahead and they began campaigning.

Farese won out in the first primary, his wife in a runoff.

The Farese have three children and they'll present a problem when the legislature meets in January in Jackson. They'll have to decide whether to leave them home or take them along.

Their biggest problem may come from other representatives who might try to get the husband and wife lined up on opposite sides of an issue—and watch the fireworks.

Elect Officers For Mt. Olive Grange At Green Camp

GREEN CAMP—Joe Lyon was elected master of Mt. Olive Grange at a meeting Thursday in the township hall. Mr. Lyon succeeds T. A. McLean recently elected for the forthcoming year who resigned because of moving to Youngstown in the near future. At the Dec. 6 meeting members are asked to bring an ornament to decorate the Christmas tree. There will be a demonstration of gift wrapping.

Taking part in the program Thursday were vocal duet, Ralph and Gwynn Bailey, accompanied by Lucille Reynolds; poem, Gladys Smeltzer; stunt, Gwynn Bailey, Marie Rothfuss, Grace Mabrey, Betty Allen, Lucille Reynolds; playlet, "Priceless Possessions" by Dorothy Porter, Ola Uncapher, Mary Thorpe, Ruth Ann Lyon, Princess Rothfuss, Lois Rothfuss and Dean Bailey.

Rev. Eugene Henzel of Emanuel Evangelical and Reformed church spoke on "Thanksgiving."

Ola Uncapher read a poem on "Grange Memories." Recognition was given to past masters and charter members of the local Grange. Also recognized was the oldest member, J. B. Porter; most faithful, Mr. and Mrs. William Flinchbaugh, and the youngest, Dean Bailey.

Stored in Deep Freeze Until Judged

Baking Contest For Men Held at Upper Sandusky

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY — Cake, cookies, pie and nut bread made by Upper Sandusky and Wyandot County men are being stored in a freezer at the Ohio Power office here as the baking contest for men only continues each weekday evening through November. The products in each of the four contest divisions will be judged for taste and texture early in December.

The contest for the male bakers was planned by the female members of the Wyandot County Hospital Guild. The Ohio Power Company and electric appliance dealers of the county are serving as co-sponsors.

Ingredients and instructions for the entries are furnished to all cotestants. Production each evening is frozen and labeled for later judging. The judges have not yet been selected and will be announced after the close of the contest on Nov. 31.

Contest winners in each of the four divisions, cake, cookies, pie and nut bread, will be announced at an auction sale in December. Proceeds will go to the hospital guild treasury.

The committee in charge includes Mrs. H. L. Wenner, Mrs. G. H. Gabriel and Miss Adda Jane Welker. Miss Welker, power company supervisor of cooking schools and demonstrations, said there has not been a single failure in the efforts of the 50 contestants during the first half of the month. A total of approximately 120 entries is expected by the end of this month.

Love Triumphant

By ADELE GARRISON

Bess Conway proved a true prophet. When we entered the classically beautiful "House of Helmer," which Bess told us was the alliterate name by which the shop was known, and were shown a few "creations" by the tall, svelte, exquisitely gowned and groomed proprietress of the shop, I saw that it indeed would be difficult to make a choice from among them.

Then Mildred, who, I realized, was reveling in this opportunity to go back to the time when luxury, not penuary, had been her portion, solved our problem.

"I think," she said, "that Madame Helmer perhaps could make a better choice for us than we could ourselves."

"I agree with you," I told her quickly. "What do you say, Bess?"

"That I have the same opinion," Bess said. "I always let Madame Helmer select my gowns. She is an artiste, who invests you in a costume as if she were painting a canvas."

"It is always a pleasure to serve Miss Conway and her friends," she said. Then a twinkle came into her eyes.

"Flatterer!" Bess said, and then we settled down to the delightful business of being gowned by a woman who "knew all the answers." When she had finished with us, I had a matching gown and wrap of moss green—"the foliage," Madame Helmer expounded, which would provide the setting for the other two gowns in flower-like hues. She gowned Mildred in delicate blue, while she put Bess Conway, "the French marquise," as she called the girl, into a creation which made her look as if she were framed in the heart of an exquisite rose.

Their cloaks were similar, of silver color with trimmings matching their gowns, and when I saw them as they were fitted for alterations, I could imagine the pride of Bill and Hank in their dinner companions. I could also visualize the effect Bess Conway's piquant loveliness would have on the "college heel" whose brains my father was planning to have Bess pick in order to obtain some clue, however faint, of the skillfully hidden treachery to his country of "the heel's" father, the high government official, seemingly impregnable, whom my father was trying to entrap.

A round of frenzied and fluttering shopping followed. With suggestions from Madame Helmer firmly clenched in our memories, we went from shop to shop purchasing accessories, from hose and handkerchiefs, from hose and handkerchiefs to evening bags, coming at last to a nationally-known jewelry establishment where we bought imitation stones, which no one but an expert could have distinguished from the real thing.

Madame Helmer had decreed emeralds for me, sapphires, for Mildred and rose pearls for Bess, and when, at last, we had finished our shopping and were speeding toward Bess Conway's apartment in a taxi, I, for one, was not sure whether I was traveling on my head or my heels.

"It isn't home," she explained, "so I don't try to make it like one. And I'm too busy to spend much time in it. Now, if you'll just sit down, I'll be as fast as I can in getting on a different face."

Housewives Get Idea, Husbands Do Work

PORT ORANGE, Fla. (UP)—A group of 30 housewives banded together here to form a "mosquito brigade." Womanlike, they will hold the offices and furnish the ideas but their husbands will do the work.

Are Dolls Smarter Than Humans? Christmas Crop Has Rare Talents

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

THE TALENTS of the doll population of the U. S. A. are reaching such heights that it begins to seem that dolls may be smarter than people.

In the lineup for Christmas, 1951, are dolls who walk and talk, speak Spanish and French, eat, burp, breathe and get their hair dyed. It's enough to frighten Santa himself, being responsible for all these highly active doll people, who for all he knows may even have complexes and psychoses about reindeer and chimneys.

There is, for instance, the "Magic Muscle" doll, who walks gracefully when her arms are held, and "Saucy Walker," who also moves her arms and rolls her eyes. Noma, the electronic doll, now sings, prays and talks in three languages when a button on her tummy is pressed.

For the delight of young beauticians, there's a glamor girl doll with a specially treated wig who comes equipped with a hair-tinting set. There also is Sweet Sue, the chignon doll, who carries her chignon in a plastic hatbox and can have an endless number of hairdos.

Baby dolls now cry real tears, eat, burp and have a "real" scalp with hair that may be brushed and shampooed. One bright baby pats her hands when squeezed.

High fashion is represented by a modish doll dressed in costumes designed by Schiaparelli, and there are other dolls in Wild West regalia, as well as brother-and-sister dolls in matching outfits.

Siam Concerned About Opium Smuggling

BANGKOK, Siam (UP) — At least 30 tons of opium has been seized by the Thai government this year from smugglers and illegal drug traffickers, the minister of finance, reported.

The minister said the government would not have to spend money next year on opium import, because the amount of opium confiscated will be sufficient to supply licensed opium dens and smokers all over the country with the drug.

Tons of opium at a time were reported to have been seized this year and it was suspected tens or even hundreds of tons of it might have been smuggled through the kingdom. Smugglers were known to employ every means of conveyance ranging from human carriers to airplanes.

HARD TO EXPLAIN

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — (UP) —An officer in a raiding party which invaded a veterans' club on suspicion of possessing liquor illegally found his own name on one of the confiscated bottles of whiskey. The flustered cop insisted he did not know how it came to be there.

Hollywood Stars' Hats Aid U.S. Bond Sales

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—The hats of Hollywood movie stars will be given away to Utah women in a "bonnets for bonds" campaign cooked up by Mrs. J. Bracken Lee, wife of Utah's governor.

More than 100 hats have been contributed by filmland residents for the drive to stimulate interest in bond sales. They will be awarded in bond sales contests throughout the state.

The idea started when the governor's wife told a defense bond volunteer worker, Mrs. Iell Pettey, sister of the movie star Lraine Day, that she receives requests for all sorts of items which have been used by occupants of the governor's mansion.

Alaska Air Bases Set To Repel Attack

U. S. Spending Vast Sums to Build Up First Line Defenses

ANCHORAGE, Alaska—(UP)—Uncle Sam is spending staggering sums of money to convert "America's Ice-Box" into a Gibraltar of the airways.

Alaska, a territory nearly three times the size of Texas, blocks the Arctic short-cut that Siberia-based bombers might fly to attack the U. S. in the event of total war with Russia, military leaders believe Alaska's big airfields would be eyed greedily as perfect springboards for round-trip bombing missions to America's production centers.

"The advent of the air age has placed us in the direct line of possible attack," Lt. Gen. William E. Kepner, Commander-in-Chief, Alaska Command, said.

"Alaska is our Gibraltar of the air age. We are living in a bastion and we must be prepared to defend it."

Radar Comes First

To do this, the United States is pouring more dollars into Alaska defense construction. This year it amounted to more than $200,000,000. Next year money spent on air fields and other installations is scheduled to top $300,000,000.

A-1 priority project is the radar net. Begun last year, work is being speeded to complete the ring of radar stations by late 1952. It would be these listening posts that would give Alaska's jet fighter pilots the few precious minutes needed to beat off an enemy air assault.

Most of the defense funds are being spent at Elmendorf Air Force Base and Fort Richardson just outside Anchorage, and Ladd and Eielson Air Force Bases near Fairbanks.

These two strongpoints are many hundreds of miles inland from Alaska's Bering Sea coast, which is only 50 miles from Siberia. The descision to embark on an all-out program to strengthen Anchorage and Fairbanks installations, at the expense of coastal outposts close to Russia and the Aleutian chain was made following World War II.

Heartland Is Key

General Kepner said:

"We must concentrate in and defend Alaska from the heartland of the Territory, where climate and terrain permit us to maintain our strongest concentrations of military power. For, I believe, these are the sections probably coveted by the enemy as bases for projected attacks against the production centers of the United States."

General Kepner stressed that Alaska is a stronghold for defense. His command's air arm depends on the speedy jet fighter rather than bombers, although Eielson Air Force Base is capable of handling the big B-36 bomber as fast as it can be flown up from the United States.

Alaska's ground defense team is trained for the primary job of repelling an airborne attack on these key strips. Military planners do not feel that the Russians would be so foolhardy as to attempt an amphibious landing on the swampy tundra or ice-coated Arctic coast and march over the roadless wastes to the interior. Such an operation would involve tremendous supply problems and leave the attacking force open to punishing air blows.

THEFT EASILY SOLVED

LYNN, Mass.—(UP)—It didn't take police long to solve the theft of $50 worth of yo-yo's. Every child seen playing with a yo-yo was questioned. Soon police had captured two 12-year-olds who admitted stealing them from the American News Co. storeroom.

Cities In U.S. Finding Ways To Quiet Birds

CHICAGO — (UP) — The noisy bird problem can be solved, according to the American Municipal Association.

In Newton, Mass., the association said, harassed city fathers were bothered by pigeons that infested the city hall. They asked the city forester to help.

With his high pressure tree sprayer, he literally blew the flock sky high with blasts of air, partially denuding some of the pigeons in the process.

Three neighboring communities in New Jersey — Montclair, Orange and West Orange—installed imitation owls and employed electric recordings of owl hoots to keep starlings on the move.

It worked at first, but the association said the starlings appear to be getting wise to the ruse.

In Detroit's Sherwood Forest section, a noiseier approach was taken to get rid of starlings. Two loudspeakers, adjusted to emit 10,000 to 11,000 cycle whistles, were set up near the trees in which the birds roost.

At that frequency, the whistles can be heard by the birds but not by human beings. The starlings fled, seeking other perches where they could carry on their chattering without interruption.

In New York City, it is unlawful to trap pigeons unless the health department rules them to be a menace to public health. During the summer, however, a permit was granted to trap those judged to be a menace to music lovers.

Pigeons perching on the rafters of Lewisohn Stadium during summer concerts menaced both musicians and audiences, so the permit was issued.

COMIC BOOKS RAIDED

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. — (UP) —Patrolman Rene Boutier looks with suspicion on anyone reading a comic book. Merchants on his beat reported 200 books stolen in one week.

MORE DEAD THAN LIVING

HAMMOND, Ind.—(UP)—More people are dead than alive within Hammond's city limits. There are 126,322 persons buried in the city's 80 cemetery acres, which is 38,728 more than the area's population.

Makes Good at Naval Base

Blind, He Shows How Handicapped Do Work

OPERATING SPECIAL electronic equipment, Andrew Jackson Mills, blinded in combat maneuvers, shows how handicapped persons make good at San Diego naval base.

* * *

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—A radio mechanic at the San Diego naval air station who was blinded in combat maneuvers in Hawaii in 1944 is one of the greatest boosters of the government's employ-the-handicapped program.

"Disability is no drawback to ability," says Andrew Jackson Mills, one of more than 1,000 physically handicapped workers employed by the navy in this area.

A former resident of Henryetta, Okla., where his mother, Mrs Bertie L. Mills, lives, Mills started to work at the air station two months ago

His supervisors say he is doing an excellent job, and that his exceptional efficiency sets a high standard for all employees on the station.

* * *

AFTER BEING blinded, Mills, who had been doing aerial photography and relief mapping in the Marine Corps, was sent to the Philadelphia Naval hospital where he was the first man to finish training under the Navy's rehabilitation program for the blind After his release from the hospital, Mills attended the University of Redlands and Claremont Graduate School, both in California, where he earned both a bachelor of arts and a master's degree

Mills has been interested in radio since he was 11 He holds an amateur's license and operates his own "ham" radio station He resides here with his wife, two daughters and his seeing-eye dog

* * *

A TOTAL OF 1,075 physically handicapped workers - veterans make up about half the total—are employed at naval activities in this area.

In addition to ordnance mechanics and typists, they are employed as messengers, truck drivers, key punch operators, plumbers, welders, firefighters, guards, radio and automobile mechanics, engineers, architects and physicists

Blind Man Drives Truck Fairly Well

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(UP)—An Arkansas state trooper watched a slow-moving truck swerve into a curb here, right itself and then move off at a snail's pace toward the downtown section.

He overhauled the truck and ordered the driver to pull over

While the officer stared in disbelief, the driver climbed from the cab with the aid of a cane A companion explained that his buddy had lost his eyes several years ago "and it was his cherished ambition to drive once more"

"Come to think of it, that blind fellow drove more carefully than a lot of people I've seen with 20-20 vision," the trooper said.

KITTEN GOES ALONG

ESSEX, Conn.—(UP)—Chester Bowles, new U S ambassador to India, meant just that when he said he would take his entire family to New Delhi The family kitten made the trip with the former Connecticut governor, his wife and three children.

BULL RESENTS GLASS

INDIANAPOLIS—(UP)—A bull housed in a stall adjacent to a window at a dairy show twice indicated the window panes gave him a pain He lifted his nose and knocked out the panes Maintenance men replaced them but he did it again

Collector Has Beer From Everywhere

BUTTE, Mont (UP) — If Ed Diller of Butte ever decides to toss a beer binge, he won't lack for ingredients

Diller — his friends call him "Killer" Diller, naturally — plans to give that party one of these days, say in about 10 years. By that time, he thinks he'll have an even greater stock of beef on hand

Many collect stamps and others coins. Some people gather match books and others even like to save string Diller is in a class all by himself. He collects beer bottles and cans—unopened.

Diller, who is 67, twice sailed around the world in the old windjammer days. He has been collecting beer for the past 10 years and hopes to continue doing so for at least that much longer. Then it will be time for that big party.

Has 305 Brands

He has gathered 305 different brands of beer in as many bottles and cans during the decade he has been collecting His collection includes beer from every state which has a brewery and also a score or more of foreign beers.

The retired sailor recently returned to Buttle from a 7,033 mile collecting trip. He traveled from Butte to New York to New Orleans. Then he went from New Orleans to Phoenix and back to Butte He visited 22 states and returned home with around 42 different brands of beer to add to his already somewhat fabulous collection

"I don't remember just how I started to collect different brands of beer as a hobby," the old sea dog said "Guess it's because I like the stuff, although I've seldom drunk to excess"

Pennsylvania Leads

Diller said Pennsylvania has the most breweries in the United States — 72 New York has 21, Wisconsin 12

"Alabama, North and South Dakota have no breweries," Diller said "Something should be done about that. I would like to have a record of having brew from all 48 states"

Chemist Goes Into Everglades

Tall Tales of Poison Tree Are Proved True

DR. W. M. LAUTER in his lab.

* * *

GAINESVILLE, Fla —(AP)— There's a tree growing in America so poisonous that rainwater dripping from its leaves can blister your flesh.

Dr. W M Lauter, pharmaceutical chemist at the University of Florida, didn't believe it He scoffed at the grisly tales told of the little-known manchineel tree which grows deep in Florida's Everglades

He set about to dispel as "rather unscientific and deplorable" the aura of dread Instead, he's working on a report which will uphold the manchineel's sinister reputation in every detail.

On his first trip to the Everglades to study the living tree, he was struck on the ear by water dripping from its branches. A "whale of a blister" was the result.

* * *

LATER HE WAS working on samples from the tree with rubber gloved respect. But there was a tiny hole in the finger of one glove A drop of sap came in contact with his skin. His right arm was swollen paralyzed and covered with ulcers for days.

The University of Florida scientist is only mildly sympathetic with the park service's lashe to keep the park's natural features—including the manchineel stands—as they are He would just as soon see the Manchineel wiped out

He draws comfort from the fact the main stands of manchineel are some 50 miles from the nearest town of any size The area is made still more unattractive to tourists by clouds of mosquitoes.

* * *

IT'S UNSAFE to cut down because its sap flies at the stroke of the ax. The pioneer land clearers used to build fires around the trees—and then make certain not to stand in the poisonous smoke

Dr. Lauter describes manchineels as "pretty little trees," found only near salt water. They're usually low and spreading with leaves somewhat resembling those of pear trees. The fruit they bear is green and is about the size and almost the shape of a large marble It has a pleasant aroma and is said to taste good The damage starts when it reaches the stomach.

Reports of the early explorers are full of anecdotes of Indians poisoning springs with its twigs, dipping arrows in its sap, enticing white men to eat its fruit or leading them to shelter under its branches during storms No antidote for its poison has been found

* * *

ONE OF HISTORY'S most famous sufferers from manchineel poisoning was the British admiral Horatio Nelson He led an expedition to Nicaragua a few years before his death at the battle of Trafalgar. Unfriendly Indians poisoned a spring from which the Britons drank. Some were killed by the poison and others became gravely ill

Nelson managed to pull through but suffered from the effects for the rest of his life. Lauter, who grieves that Nelson wasn't embalmed so his intestines might be studied, considers it something of a miracle he didn't die on the spot

Strangely enough, furniture is made from manchineel wood in some of the Caribbean countries The poison is said to evaporate after the bark is removed and the wood cured in the sun. The furniture is considered safe to use and is esteemed for its termite-proof qualities but dubious Dr Lauter says, "Frankly, I wouldn't want to sit in such a chair"

So far, Dr. Lauter has been unable to find any reason why the tree should be so poisonous Usually a purpose and a good one can be found for every defense nature sets up. Not so in the case of the manchineel

Seek Data On Star Closest Solar System

MT. HAMILTON, Calif. (UP)— Observations that will bring new knowledge of the star closest to the solar system have been reported by a University of California astronomer now visiting in Australia.

The report was made by Dr. Gerald E. Kron, associate astronomer at the University's Lick Observatory. Kron, on a year's leave for study in Australia, made the observations at the Commonwealth Observatory at Mt Stromlo, near Canberra, in collaboration with S C B. Gascoigne, of that observatory.

The observations were made of the star, Proxima Centauri, by means of photoelectric devices. Proxima is one of the smallest and faintest stars known It can be seen only with a fairly large telescope, and then only because it is so nearby.

Relatively Close

Proxima Centauri is very close in terms of stellar distance—four light years (24,000,000,000,000 miles). It is about one-tenth the diameter of the sun, roughly the size of the planet Jupiter. Its low surface also contributes to its dimness.

Kron said the brightness of Proxima is so great in infrared light, that if one had vision in the infrared equivalent to our actual vision, a keen-eyed observer would be able to see the star without a telescope.

The First Thanksgiving

Indians' Big Surprise Party Got That Turkey on the Menu

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING—a popular historic picture.

WHILE you are wondering whether that big Thanksgiving turkey will go in the oven and whether there will be enough to feed the guests you have invited, you might give a thought to the Pilgrims at the first Thanksgiving dinner.

Jut to start with, they had 90 unexpected guests. They had planned a small feast to celebrate their first harvest and to give thanks that their little community had survived hard times. Months of privation had taken their toll. There had been many deaths, but now they saw hope ahead. Full of good will, they asked Massasoit, a friendly Indian, and his family to attend the feast.

Indians Stole the Show

Massasoit showed up with 90 braves. There were twice as many Indians as Pilgrims. But the Indians had brought along five deer, which were a big help.

It tiok them a week to get ready and when they started, they feasted for three days. There were only five mature women and a few girls to do the cooking. The men went hunting. Gov. William Bradford and four men killed as many wild turkeys as possible. Two fishermen came in with eels, clams and oysters. The youngsters picked wild cranberries, cherries and grapes.

Most of the cooking was done in the open. The birds were roasted on spits, the sea food on coals. The first Thanksgiving pie was made when the women cooked some of their dried fruits in dough cases.

They had wine which they had made from wild grapes, and beer. A shortage of beer had been an important reason for their settling in what is now Massachusetts instead of Virginia where they had intended to go. One Pilgrim journal explains—"for we could not now take time for further search or consideration, our victuals being much spent, especially our beer."

One feature of the celebration was a big hit with the children. That was the popcorn the Indians brought along. They popped it in a big pan and then poured maple syrup over it. It was messy, but good and the children chewed on it for three days.

Easy Table Manenrs

In those days the children did not have so many table manners to watch. They had no napkins, forks or even plates. They did have some knives to cut the meat and some wooden spoons.

The Indians joined them in races and jumping contests. And the redmen had archery contests in which they showed off their skill. The white man banged away with their guns and played tunes on bugles, to the amazement of their red friends. Miles Standish got an ovation when he marched his ltitle group of soldiers up and down the clearing.

Married for 71 Years He Offers Advice

HONEOYE, N. Y. (UP)—Alfred H. Youland, 93, and his wife Margaret, 89, can give some of the younger folks advice on marriage. They look back on 71 years of wedded life.

Youland said "doing things on a 50-50 basis" was the reason for the long marriage.

"If folks will work together, plan together, play together and always respect one another, 71 years will roll around pretty fast and happily," he said.

60 Tons of Ice Ease Machine Into Bed

DETROIT (UP)—Engineers in an automobile plant used 60 tons of ice to solve a problem.

During a model change-over, a 275,000-pound stamping press had to be turned on its side for shipment to another plant.

Old Dress in Attic Yields $250 Cash

CARBONDALE, Pa. — (UP) — Mrs. E. D. Delaney reaped a windfall while hunting for old dresses in her attic.

While searching through some trunks she found $250 in currency in a small bag pinned inside a dress that had been worn by her mother, the late Mrs. Catherine Bridgett.

Mrs. Delaney said she remembered her mother wore the dress when her son, Dr Frank A. Bridgett, was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania medical school in 1902.

General's Voice Impresses Her

Blind Newspaperwoman Interviews Eisenhower

PARIS—(AP)—General Dwight D Eisenhower granted an exclusive interview the other day to an American newspaperwoman who was almost as much news as the Supreme Commander himself.

Paris newspapers printed lengthy accounts of the meeting and carried pictures on their front pages of the General and the reporter. She is Kathryn Smith of the Buffalo Courier-Express, a successful columnist and newspaperwoman despite the fact she has been blind all her life.

Miss Smith, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Vassar College, is making a tour of Europe alone, accompanied only by her Seeing-Eye dog, "Quinta." So far she has met Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, some of the leading personalities of Spain, and top political and intellectual figures in France

"I have a lot of natural curiosity," said Miss Smith, a quiet mild-looking figure who dresses pertly.

She had studied newspaper work under Burgess Johnson of the old New York Sun while she was at Vassar

"He made reporting fascinating for me," she said. She had heard that the Courier-Express printed an editorial praising her scholastic accomplishment in the face of heavy odds So she dropped in to ask them for a job They gave it to her.

* * *

FOR THE NEXT TEN years she turned out a column called "Buffalo's Good Listener" and pulled scoop-interviews with the late President Franklin D Roosevelt, Henry Ford and Lily Pons, the singer, among others

Of all the personalities she has interviewed, General "Ike" impressed her the most. She says she judges people in many little ways, but particularly by the warmth of their voices and the way they talk Of Eisenhower she said:

"I felt that when I was with him, I was with a great leader When he talked about the future of Europe, you felt he could see what was obscure to the rest of us. He has the confidence and conviction to make others go along with him"

What she liked most about the general was his humility. "He doesn't try to set himself up as above anyone else," she said.

Miss Smith has travelled extensively before, principally to South America, but this is her first unaccompanied tour abroad. She originally had planned to come to Europe in the spring, but her faithfull "Lassie" a Seeing-Eye dog she had had for ten years, died, forcing a postponement.

KATHRYN SMITH . . . Buffalo, N. Y. columnist, tours Europe with Seeing-Eye dog.

She came by plane, landing in Holland and soon afterwards was chatting with the Netherlands' ruler, Queen Juliana. Said Miss Smith:

* * *

MISS SMITH DECIDED early in life that blindness would not get her down She found that doing something and making friends with lots of people helped most.

"I like to do active things," she said, over a ginger ale in a Left Bank hotel. "I can swim a mile and a quarter. I can play contract bridge, with cards marked in braille. and I've finished second in several intercity tournaments"

One of the first things she did on arriving in Paris was to go for a walk Crossing the street in Paris is an adventure which makes normal people blanche. But she managed it, with "Quinta's" help. She remarked.

"When I told friends here that I was going for a walk, they thought I was crazy. Before I came here, from the States I was told that one of the favorite sports of the French motorist is running down innocent pedestrians. But it turned out all right"

"This trip," said Miss Smith, has been an interesting experience. Wherever I have gone I have met with a great deal of friendliness, kindness and an apparent interest in what I am doing I have the feeling that all human beings, Wherever they live, are trying for a better life, trying to be fair and kind to the people around them"

But she added, she was returning to America more of an American than ever before She said she had found the youth of Holland discouraged over the future and lack of opportunity, the French besieged by the inflationary cost of living and the Spanish by poverty She said:

"The United States, I've decided, is one of the few countries in the world where its people have real possibility for the future"

Six U.S. Cities Making Progress In Home Rule

CHICAGO—(UP)—Cities of six states this year made progress in their perennial battle for home rule, according to the American Municipal Association.

In Connecticut, the legislature gave cities the right to "make, amend, add to or replace" their charters Proposed amendments require a majority vote and 51 percent of the qualified voters must participate

In Rhode Island, voters adopted overwhelmingly a home rule amendment which permits cities to draw up new home rule charters. Such charters will give to the cities all powers on local matters except those denied them specifically by state constitution, chiefly concerning debts and taxes

A home rule bill for Georgia offers municipalities their first real opportunity for a large measure of self-government in strictly local affairs The city council or 30 percent of the eligible voters may petition for a charter commission.

Tennessee's legislature enacted a call for a limited constitutional convention to draft amendments providing municipal home rule and a system of optional municipal charters.

Maryland enacted four city charters permitting specified cities to amend state-granted municipal law. West Virginia gave all its municipalities the taxation and financial powers granted to home rule cities.

In Massachusetts, approval is anticipated on a diluted home rule bill. In Washington, however, a home rule bill was rejected, although cities and counties were given the right to set their own office hours.

A Happy Holiday . . . that's Thanksgiving! When family, friends and community get together to give thanks for the blessings that have been ours, increasingly, since Pilgrim Days.

In the hurry and pressure of modern living we are too apt to take for granted . . . fine crops, health measures, good schools, etc. . . . all of which are possible only in a nation which guards jealously Freedom of the Individual and Freedom of Worship.

Crop Yields Good Income

Most of This Year's 10 Million Yule Trees Started Decade Ago

TREE FARMER loads up his Christmas trees for market.

By CHARLES LYONS
Associated Press Writer

This year more than 10 million Christmas trees will be used in the United States. Planning for most of them was begun about a decade ago by the Christmas-tree farmer.

In early days wild stock was used exclusively for Christmas trees. With the growing interest in conservation in the early years of the 20th Century, hand-planted trees appeared. Since then the trend has been toward domestic rather than the wild tree.

Any land that is well drained and free from large woody vegetation will probably grow Christmas trees. The annual income per acre from a Christmas tree plot may well compare favorably with that from a more intensive crop.

Must Be Informed

A Christmas-tree farmer has to have a good deal of know-how. He has to be alert to possible hazards from livestock, fire, insects and disease, rodents, adverse weather, thieves and the competition of "volunteer" hardwoods growing up in the Christmas tree plantation.

Some farmers plant an equal area each year until the first harvest, say in 10 years. After harvesting, each area is replanted the following spring thus a rotation is established and the supply is constant.

Pines hold their needles well and are rapid growers, compared to spruce or fir. However, they usually present a too open, scraggly appearance. The spruces are popular because of their compact bushy growth and conical shape. One of the most beautiful trees produced in the U. S. is the black spruce from swamp bogs of Minnesota.

No Pruning Needed

Douglas firs and balsam firs develop into satisfactory trees without pruning. Spruces require pruning after the first five years. Hemlocks are the least satisfactory because of the tendency to needle loss when brought indoors.

The demands of the public determine cutting time for Christmas trees, whether it be for 3-foot table models or the more conventional 6 and 7-footers.

Traffic By-Passing Held No Harm to Business

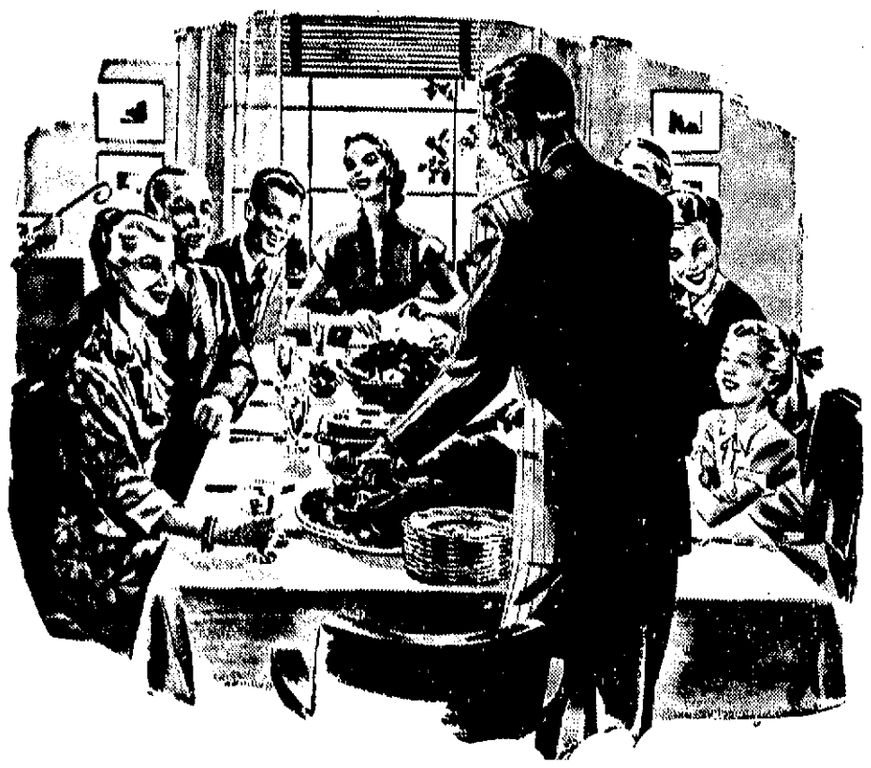
CHICAGO (UP)—The rerouting of highways to by-pass business districts usually brings more business instead of less to the merchants, according to the American Society of Planning Officials.

The society cited a study made by the California highway department, which investigated the effect of turnpikes and throughways on business and land values in five by-passed California towns.

In North Sacramento the four-mile main business street served as a highway for cross-state traffic until 147, when a by-pass was built. In the next two years, overall volume of retail business in the by-passed stores increased 48.5 percent compared with a county-wide increase of 27 percent.

Fingerling trout and salmon withstood water pressures up to 1,000 pounds per square inch without noticeable damage in experiments at the University of California's Scripps Institution of Oceanograph.

Nearly 8,500,000 applications were made for ordinary life insurance policies in 1950 and 97 out of every 100 were accepted. At the turn of the century, declinations ran well above 10 percent.



Thanksgiving

It's not enough to say "Thanks" for the many blessings we as Americans enjoy . . . it is indeed more fitting to give thought to the privileges and precepts that this very day stands for! We give thanks on this day for what America is, and what it stands for . . . for its firm foundation of democracy with tolerance and justice for all. And, as we say grace before the turkey is carved, we count foremost among our blessings the fact that we are Americans—enjoying the bounty of good food, good friends and good living . . . of liberty, equality and freedom!

Wyoming Feeds Fish With Fish To Boost Its Game Trout Stock

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—(UP)—Wyoming, a wonderland for the nation's trout fishermen, is planning some high-pressured cooking to keep its game fish from starving to death.

The state fish warden, A. F. C. Greene, said the problem of feeding the trout reared in state-owned hatcheries started becoming serious several years ago, when fishermen began demanding that more and more trout be planted in state streams.

At the same time, he said commercial fish food used in the rearing hatcheries for baby trout became scarce and more expensive.

Dog-food producers and professional fish raisers raided the existing market in competition, forcing the price of inedible beef livers and horse meat—the most common fish food—to all-time highs.

Big Cooker Used

The game and fish department then turned to its own streams, filled with annoying non-game fish and to a 12-foot pressure cooker.

"It dawned on us that in the non-game fish such as sunfish, carp, suckers and chubs we had a source of food that was inexpensive and readily available," Greene said.

He decided on an experiment at the Ten Sleep hatchery in north central Wyoming to produce food within the state.

2,000 Pounds of Fish

Twelve gallons of water are poured into the cooker. Then 2,000 pounds of non-game fish are splashed into the water—bones, scales, heads and all. The lid is fastened down and the concoction cooked for 15 hours.

While the cooker is still hot, attendants pour in 300 pounds of rolled oats, 10 pounds of salt and small amounts of brewer's yeast. The fish-food technicians also add a pinch of vitamin B-1.

The mixture cooks further by its own heat and is then removed through a valve in the bottom. As soon as it comes out of the vat, the fish food is pushed through a meat grinder to give it more mixing.

After that, it is poured into wash tubs, frozen and becomes "delicious" trout food, from the trout's point of view.

Pearls occur in oysters when a foreign object—perhaps a tiny grain of sand—gets between the shell and the body. Successive layers of a material called nacre, which consists of calcium carbonate, is secreted around the object.

The sun's brightness in candlepower is about four billion billion billion. (If you'd like to write that out, put down the figure four followed by 27 zeros.)

Polynesia, including Hawaii is believed to be the last habitable area to be occupied by man, the earliest settlers probably arriving around 500 A. D.

Things Were Bad All Over

IN 1921, the world was in a mess. Here at home even more than abroad, conditions were enough to set a man crazy with despondency.

Between wild Indians on one hand and crooked politicians and government spendthrifts on the other, no Pilgrim could feel very cheerful about getting through 1622 without losing his shirt.

The rich were getting richer and the poor were getting poorer. The snoopers and sniffers were hard at work, trying to make life as miserable for everyone else as they had made it for themselves.

Taxes were too high and intelligence was too low. An honest man couldn't trust his public officials any further than he could throw them like a bag of that Indian maize which tasted so good. Things were bad all over, all right, and it was only suspiciously cheerful folks who thought otherwise. They just weren't grim enough to be realistic.

Fortunately, the cheerful ones prevailed and with the grudging consent of the sourballs who were on the verge of signing off the whole silly project of colonizing North America they staged a feast. The idea was to have a thanks-giving for what they had received, which wasn't much, but things were looking up. A man with faith, if he peered at the future through slits in his eyelids and didn't ask too many questions, could see light.

By trying hard enough, an optimist can still see light after 330 years of things being pretty bad all over. All it takes is faith, the same thing that buoyed up the forward-looking Pilgrims.

Mr. Truman Is Absolutely Right

IN HIS speech to the Women's National Democratic Club, President Truman discussed two political matters uppermost in his mind. Since they are going to be discussed innumerable times before next year's Presidential election, they may as well be brought into the open now.

One is Mr. Truman's misgivings about the foreign policy issue if it gets into a national campaign. The misgivings are well founded. The Democrats have had the advantage of silence on this issue, under the agreement that foreign policy should be taken out of politics.

During the silence they have piled up a fantastic record of blunders. In 1952, they will be held accountable for their blunders. That is why Senator Taft has gone to the trouble of writing a book about his foreign policy views. It is why apologists for the Democrats are working night and day to discredit the book. Whether the Truman Administration likes it or not, foreign policy is going to be debated to a fare-thee-well. Mr. Truman wishes this could be otherwise. It won't be.

The other thing he wishes could be otherwise is the kind of support Senator Taft will be given in a national campaign for the Presidency if the support he was given in his Ohio campaign for reelection to the Senate in 1950 is any criterion. Mr. Truman does not like the idea of a political opposition which threatens to spend as much money to lick his party as his party is willing to spend to keep itself from getting licked. He is afraid this would bring a Republican victory. He is absolutely right.

In Ohio last year, stimulated by labor union boasts of practically unlimited spending power to knock off Senator Taft, a great many people who thought the senator should not be knocked off retaliated with political contributions. For one of the few times since the more abundant life subsided the Democratic party, the Republicans were not cramped for the wherewithal to stage a campaign. They won with votes to spare. They could win that way in 1952.

Of course, the Republicans will lack the fruitful privileges that go with being the party in power. For example, Mr. Truman flew to Washington from Key West and back this week to make a frankly political speech all at public expense. His opposition will have to pay its own way. Moreover, it will have to pay its own way in its own name. It cannot conceal large expenditures under the names of other organizations, as has been the practice of some of the pressure-bloc members of the Democratic coalition.

President Truman thinks the Republican party is getting ready to put on a whale of a campaign in 1952 to get him out of the White House. He does not relish the prospect. If he broods about it, he may discover he does not want to run for what would amount to a third term.

A Game With Human Life

WHETHER it's Korea, where armistice hopes again are blooming, or Paris, where the U.N. General Assembly is taking potshots at the dove of peace, the men who have assumed the right to speak in behalf of nations are on the hottest spot in history.

If they fail to represent their countries properly, more human lives will be forfeited than ever before, thanks to atomic warfare. They will fail to represent their countries if they fail to avert war. No one wants war, except those who are using it as a threat in the hope of obtaining something else.

Book Review Bias

By Raymond Moley

Serious Charges Against N.Y. Literary Critics

THE INDEFATIGABLE John T. Flynn has provided a summing up of a controversy that has been gaining in importance and intensity for a long time. The general background of this controversy is the charge that a large proportion of the book reviewing in periodicals published in New York is burdened with a left-wing bias. This charge has found its most convincing proof in what reviewers have written over the past five or six years about American foreign policy, especially in Asia.

MOLEY

Irene Kuhn presented in the "American Legion Magazine" in January, 1950, an indictment of the way in which New York book reviewers had treated recent political writings, especially those dealing with our Far Eastern policy. Senator Brewster had made a similar indictment on the floor.

Flynn in his new book, "While You Slept," directs his criticism at "The New York Herald Tribune Books of the Week," "The New York Times Weekly Book Review," "The Saturday Review of Literature," "The Nation," and "The New Republic." His documentation of this criticism is as follows:

First, he lists 30 books published between 1943 and 1949 dealing with China's political problems. Of these, 23 were books that leaned toward the Chinese Communists. Seven were favorable to the Chinese Nationalists and against the Communists. Flynn makes the following forthright statement about the reviews in the five papers and magazines listed above:

"Every one of the 23 pro-Communist books, whore reviewed, received glowing approval in the literary reviews I have named—that is, in The New York Times, The Herald-Tribune, The Nation, The New Republic, and The Saturday Review of Literature. And every one of the anti-Communist books was either roundly condemned or ignored in these same reviews."

* * *

FLYNN GOES ON to prove by citing names that there was revealed in the selection of people by the five newspapers and magazines to do the reviewing a marked tendency to use the various authors of the various books. In short, there was established a process of authors puffing each other's books—except that the anti-Communist authors were not used as reviewers of books favoring the Chinese Communists.

High on the list of reviewers, leading all others, were Owen Lattimore and his wife, and Edgar Snow and wife. Among them, they wrote 23 of the 44 reviews.

The leftist trend in book reviewing in these New York publications has extended far beyond books on China. It has been quite generally notable in reviews of books on current political and economic subjects. I am a fairly consistent reader of those literary reviews, and I feel certain of this. In fairness, I ought to add that since this criticism has arisen, "The New York Times" has been more fair in its selection of reviewers. That has not been true of the other four mentioned above, however.

* * *

THE LESSON of this to the nation generally is that there is no reason in the world to look to New York for leadership and guidance concerning books on political and economic subjects. The failure of these New York publications to be fair and competent in book reviewing is a challenge to and an opportunity for the press of the nation generally. This country is too big to have its tastes affected by the radical influences that are so powerful in the pseudo-intellectual circles of the metropolis.

Six Foot Plus

By TRUMAN TWILL

THE VISITOR was one of those incredibly big young men they're raising these days—feet like shovels and hands like hams, with a 6-foot-plus frame and the poundage to go with it.

He had dropped in to say goodbye, he explained, because in a few more days he would be leaving for military service as a draftee. His older brother already was with the occupation army in Germany.

It was going to be hard on his father, he admitted, with both of the boys away, but the old man had mechanized everything he could on the family farm and would be able to make out all right. The grocery bill wouldn't be so high, for one thing. That was a joke.

The talk went on like that for a long time — the kind of things a young man who has lived on a farm all his life would be likely to talk about to sympathetic listeners on the eve of his departure for a new experience in a world he never had seen before.

We talked about his hunting dogs, the guns he and his brother and his father had accumulated over the years, about hunting season, coon hunting and the characteristics of ammunition. There was talk about trucks and tractors, particularly tractors and what they had meant to agriculture.

He talked about high school basketball, football and what he had liked and hadn't liked about his four years of higher education in the township school system. He wondered what it would be like to live with other men in a training camp and whether or not they would like him—a raw recruit from the farm.

Finally it was time to break it off and say goodnight. In the weeks since then there have been many other conversations. Politics, books, television shows, an assortment of social issues and endless shop talk have gone over the dam. But that goodbye conversation with the farm boy who wondered what they were going to think of him is the one that sticks.

They're going to thank all the stars in Old Glory that this country is turning out six-foot farm boys who know very little more than how to run tractors, shot straight and buckle down at chore time. Not that it doesn't take all kinds of young men to add up to the tough wall of security which is going to give Americans a stronger sense of self-respect than they have had since those Chinese farm boys began to swarm over the United Nations armies in Korea. But somehow the thought of the kind of rough-hewn manhood which is still being raised on the farms is more comforting than the thought of young men who never saw a sunrise until they grew up.

He wondered whether they would like him. . .

If he didn't make some harassed sergeant leap with joy, all is lost, including liberty, and it's time to run and hide in the hills.

Marion County History Brevities

By EDNA S. DUTTON

The pioneer, with his limited tools, experienced great difficulty in erecting his home in the forests of Marion County. If a hewed-log was desired the logs would be hewed on two sides either before or after being hauled to the spot where the house was to be erected and on an appointed day the few neighbors would assemble for the "house-raising." Each end of every log was "saddled" and notched so they would lie close together. The next day the owner would "chink and daub" the cabin to keep out the rain, cold and wind. To chink it was to drive small blocks of wood into the crevices between the logs and to daub it was to fill in clay mortar on both sides, making the walls air tight. The house had to be redaubed every fall as the rains would wash out a good part of the mortar.

America's Day of Thanksgiving

By George E. Sokolsky

THE pause that comes with any holiday can, with advantage, be a moment for self-examination. Thanksgiving day, in particular, lends itself to this purpose. Otherwise, each day is like the day before, a rhythmic motion from darkness to light and then to darkness again — and nothing more.

Our Thanksgiving holiday is strictly American. It is unrelated to politics, as is the Fourth of July, or to a religious order, as is Easter. It exists by Presidential proclamation. Yet, few documents ordering the event grasp at its essential purpose. The noblest of these proclamations was Abraham Lincoln's of March 30, 1863, in which he said:

SOKOLSKY

"Whereas it is the duty of nations as well as of men to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon, and to recognize the sublime truth, announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord. . . .

" . . . We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven; we have been preserved these many years in peace and prosperity; we have grown in numbers, wealth, and power as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten God. We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us, and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us."

* * *

THIS THANKSGIVING proclamation, in nobility of expression, in depth of sentiment, in understanding of the religious motivation of our civilization is as magnificent as the Gettysburg address. It is a demonstrable fact in history that no civilization has blossomed or long existed, the roots of which are not deep in religious belief and experience.

To assume that Thanksgiving Day is a pause from work, accompanied by the feast of the turkey and pumpkin pie, is to give to Bacchus a day dedicated to God.

There was a time in our land when such a festival was inaugurated with prayer at the family table, when children were taught to realize that the richness of our lives comes from God. Today, too many children must assume that it comes from the breaks that father got, or from the bounty of government, or from the politicians who have set themselves up as federal lords mailing government checks to their beneficiaries.

* * *

MEN WHO THANK GOD for their bread are independent of other men. They raise their eyes Heavenward and know the truth. They do not live in fear of man, or government, or power. They know that all men are created to be equal in the eyes of the Lord and when they have returned to that permanent state in which dust is dust, only that remains of them which is eternal, the soul, the holy spirit that is life.

In these troubled times, the thought must come to many: What have I to be thankful for?

Surely, it cannot be for wealth, for automobiles and electrical refrigerators and television sets. For if we had none of these, there still would be much to be thankful for.

We need to be thankful for life itself.

We need to be thankful that our lovely land has not been invaded by a foreign foe, that our cities have not been devastated, that our infants have not been slaughtered by the savagery of wild races emerging to power.

* * *

WE NEED TO BE thankful that, for most of us, sons outlive their fathers, and in those homes that are tortured by the nearness of war tragedy, they know that none take lightly their misfortunes and that we join in their sorrows as though they were our own.

We need to be thankful that we have been chosen from among the nations to lead mankind to a peaceful world. Recognizing our own weaknesses and the frailties of those who lead us, we fear the weight of such responsibility and humbly pray that we may not do more harm than good. But we know that whatever we do is in kindliness and not to harm, to conquer, to enslave.

May God bless this day of Thanksgiving.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Thoughts on Thanksgiving Day

The Thanksgivings of yesterday in America had, it seems to us, a deeper feeling . . . the picture of the reverent colonists seemed closer . . . there was a touch of the Sabbath about it all. It was a day for getting the whole family together under one roof, with a special glow around a table to which one had returned from "the city." In New England, where this writer was raised, there was a very special flavor about Thanksgiving, especially if there happened to be a little snow on the ground or a good covering of frost . . . you could look out the window across the field and fancy you saw the first settlers gunning for a wild turkey, keeping a weather eye out for Injuns and ever grateful for small blessings.

PHILLIPS

The turkey dinner was not so general in our boyhood. A chicken had to do in many, many homes, and no squawking, no jealousies, no feeling that something should be done about a luckier individual who had a fifteen pounder with all the fixins. There were plenty of New England homes where chicken was served as a mere matter of frugality, a virtue now pretty well extinguished. Even in Connecticut, where the Puritanical spirit was, and is, pretty strong, the turkey raffle was a flourishing institution, accepted even by the bluenoses. Every cafe, high, low and medium, had a turkey or pig in the front window for a week before Thanksgiving. Through the day and night before the holiday the rattle of dice assumed deafening proportions. Chances were as low as 10 cents a shake and never more than a quarter.

* * *

The bigger spots, like Mooney & Kennedy's, the Aschenbrodel, the Palace Cafe, Billy Ray's, Adam Zeigler's and Toole & McGinn's raffled off hundreds of birds. The smallest place saw dozens won and lost. We remember a time when Billy Young won a live pig and carried it home in a cab with disastrous results.

* * *

There was always the fellow who won three or four birds and the sad companion who wound up birdless after spending enough money to finance a small turkey farm. Almost every street saw numerous citizens alighting from the late trolley cars with turkeys won at a raffle under their arms. But all this was the day and night before Thanksgiving. When Thanksgiving Day dawned, the spirit of such goings-on vanished completely, and even a man who had had his annual fling with a dice box put the memory far behind him and appeared on the scene appropriately penitent, warmly reverent and exuding the Thanksgiving mood. It was a wonderful day in the kitchen. Even mother, working like a slave, seemed never to mind the burdens of providing a big spread for all hands.

* * *

The odor of rich spices, onions, turnips, cranberries, mince meat, chestnuts, gravy and of the roasting bird come back to us now. . . . In memory we look around wondering how to steal a nut off a cake . . . and maybe snitch a small piece of turkey from the oven without being detected. . . . What recollections flood over us! . . . Mom going through all the wonderful ceremonials of stuffing the bird . . . the kids constantly tramping in to see how things are coming on . . . pop sharpening a carving knife (with his annual criticisms of the kitchen cutlery) . . . and the voices saying, "Just take it easy and don't cut yourself." . . . "Mommer, can I have white meat?" . . . "The dark meat is better for you, sonny." . . . "More mashed potatoes, please!" . . . and "What wonderful, cranberry sauce!" . . . And, later, "Where did you say the bicarb was?" . . . Them was the days, brother!

News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO—It was Saturday, Nov. 22, 1941.

The United Mine Workers policy committee accepted President Roosevelt's proposal to refer the captive mine controversy to a board of arbitration and recommended an immediate return to work of all strikers in both the captive and commercial mines. The board was immediately named by the president to consist of John R. Steelman, head of the labor department's conciliation service, as the public representative, Benjamin Fairless, president of U S Steel, representing the steel industry, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, representing labor.

The long-besieged British garrison at Tobruk was reported having broken out of the Axis semi-circle around the port and German and Italian armored forces—split and partly cut off in eastern Libya—were being ground between British tank columns, the Eighth army headquarters declared.

The marriage of Miss Florence Mary Uliano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Uliano of 214 E. George St., and James H. Beaschler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Beaschler of Martel, took place in St Mary rectory.

The bureau of unemployment compensation moved into its new quarters on the first floor of the Cummin Memorial building at the corner of E. Center St. and State St.

Climaxing a three-year career as an Ohio State Buckeye gridder first as a second string tackle and later as a regular and captain, Jack Stephenson of Marion turned in probably the greatest game of his career as the Bucks held the mighty Michigan Wolverines to a 20-20 deadlock.

The November meeting of the Juvenile Lecture-Recital Club was held recently with John Brumage as host at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brumage on Hill St.

The program included a program of music by members of the club and a study of the symphony orchestra. A discussion was held on the classification of different instruments and their office in four-part composition. Teachers are asked to call Mrs. John Lacey, Mrs. Ralph Mills or Mrs. Oramel R. Green for pupils entering tryouts to be held in January for membership in the club. Members were asked to have dues in by Dec. 1 in order to have a club rating on the state honor roll.

A family dinner at the home of Mrs. A. P. McMurray at 175 North Grand Ave., Sunday was in honor of her birthday anniversary. Present were Mr. and Clair Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Weaver Jr., and daughter, Deborah, Barberton; Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMurray and daughters Kathleen and Sheila, near Prospect; Mr. and Mrs. Dale McMurray and son Billy, Lorain; Jonathan Johns, Mt. Mothers Honored At Banquet Of Secretaries Assoc.

MOTHERS were guests when members of the Marion Chapter, National Secretaries Association, entertained with their annual mother-daughter banquet Tuesday evening at Hotel Harding. Guest speaker was the Rev. Father Urban Wiggins, assistant pastor of St. Mary Catholic Church.

The dinner setting featured autumn flowers and white lighted tapers. Centering each panel of the U-shaped table were low containers filled with bronze and yellow chrysanthemums and greenery, and at each place was a copy of the November issue of Sec's Pecks, the chapter's official publication. Decorating the cover of the booklet, which was dedicated to the mothers, was a framed medallion silhouette in black and gold. Places were marked with cutout baskets holding the program for the evening and favors for the guests were potted plants in tinsel holders. During the dinner hour Miss Barbara Oiler played a program of piano music.

Mrs. Vivian Jobe was toastmistress and a welcome was extended by Miss Martha Fabian, president of the chapter. The response was by Mrs. Carl F. Haberman.

The speaker prefaced his talk on "Sending an Ambassador to Rome," with a tribute to motherhood which he said is "one of God's Holy institutions."

He explained the philosophy of communism, which, he said, has as its objective the destruction of Christianity. Describing communism as a system of materialism, its philosophy, he said, destroys morality and robs man of his dignity as a human being. The Vatican, he stated, is a sovereign state and England and many other countries have, and do maintain diplomatic relations there. That the Catholic Church has been the avowed enemy of communism for years is a matter of history, and Popes have warned the world of this situation, he added. Referring to the controversial question of separation of church and state, the priest explained that the church is interested in man's soul, the state in his temporal welfare, each supreme in its own sphere. He warned of the subtlety of communistic propaganda, particularly of its infiltration of youth and its efforts to divide nations and people. In closing he expressed the hope that as the Christmas season approaches Christians throughout the world would "put Christ into Christmas."

A special award was won by Mrs. Tom Greenland and other prizes were won by Mrs. L. J. Fabian, Mrs. J. L. Nickelson and Miss Edna Dutton.

Guests included Mrs. Thelma Sifritt, Mrs. Nickelson, Mrs. Fabian, Mrs. Elmer Bierce, Mrs. R. W. Kraner, Mrs. Carl Prettyman, Mrs. Greenland, Mrs. Harry G. Seiter, Mrs. Marvin W. Crabtree, Mrs. J. P. Coughlin, Mrs. Edward Watts, Mrs. Haberman, Mrs. C. E. Hornby, Mrs. Jon Avrigean, Miss Mary Mahaffey and Miss Dutton.

Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Vivian Jobe, chairman, Mrs. Edna Gist and Mrs. Virginia Seiter.

Today's Fashion Flash

NEW YORK

TWEEDS and pseudo-tweeds will be big fashion news next resort and spring season.

For the first time in Harris-tweed-history, the nubby fabrics will be combined linens and cottons.

They will be turned out by the modish dozens in tweed jumpers, spencers, waistcoats and suits—to be combined with summery linen or cotton trimmings.

For women who don't want to endure the warmth or expense of woolen tweeds, manufacturers are creating denims that are flecked and nubby and look nearly like the real article.

Miss Marlene Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Peterson of 242 Jefferson St., became the bride of Cpl. Gerald E. Huber in a double ring ceremony performed Nov. 17 by the Rev. C. M. The bride wore a beige knit suit with brown accessories for her wedding. Her corsage was made of Talisman roses. She is a 1951 graduate of Harding High School and was employed by the Ohio Associated Telephone Co.

Cpl. Huber, a graduate of Harding High School with the class of 1949, will report to Camp Kilmer for assignment Nov. 27.

Gov. Warren Undergoes Abdominal Operation

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 22—(AP)—Gov. Earl Warren underwent an operation at the University of California Hospital yesterday for removal of his appendix and a number of abdominal adhesions, the governor's office reported. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination for president.

Dr. Junius B. Harris of Sacramento said the condition of the 60-year-old chief executive was good.

Warren was ordered to the UC hospital in San Francisco last Friday for what Dr. Harris termed an acute intestinal disturbance. Examinations concluded last night, he said, led to the decision to operate.

"Life With Father" had the longest run of any play in New York City with 3,213 performances.

Britain Wants Advance Word

Seeks Consultation On Atomic Attacks

London, Nov., 22-(AP)-Prime Minister Winston Churchill is expected to ask President Truman for assurances that United States bombers will launch no atomic attack from their British bases without prior consultation with Britain, informants said Wednesday night.

The Prime minister Wednesday refused to promise left-wing laborites that he would seek similar assurance that no atomic attack would be made in Korea without consultation with the British. He said it was not proper to discuss what he might talk about with the President when he visits Washington in January.

The informants said Churchill will link a demand for assurances concerning use of the British bases with his wish for a full exchange of atomic secrets with the United States. The war-time exchange of information stopped in 1945.

Churchill Wednesday rejected a demand of Emrys Hughes, a left-wing laborite, that Britain turn the United States out of its atomic bomber bases in this country.

Motor To Toronto To See Fair

Iberia FFA Members Attend Canadian Livestock Show

Special to The Star

IBERIA--Thirty-four members of the Future Farmers of America from Iberia are attending the Winter Live stock Fair International show, at Toronto, Ontario.

Enroute to Toronto, the group stopped at Niagara Falls. On the return trip, they were stopping at two large dairy farms. The round trip was approximately 700 miles.

The trip was planned by the agriculture teacher, Stark Beard, the school superintendent, Preston Burggraf, and Dr. M. E. Epperson, Galion veterinarian, who lives in the Iberia community. Each man drove a car in the caravan. Other drivers were Boyd Epperson one of the students, Dean Straley, Elmer Leatham, Aaron Smith and Willard Chambers.

The boys who made the trip range from the 9th grade through the 12th. Five of them had grand champion stock at the Ohio State Fair and the Morrow County Fair this year. They are: James Nichols, Ayershire cattle; Boyd Epperson, sheep; Kenneth Augenstine, hogs; James Sautter, Brown Swiss cattle; and Alvin Keefer, sheep. The entire group had a grand champion State Barn Exhibit at the State Fair. Two of the boys, Jim Nichols and Jim Sautter, shared the $50 award offered by Dr. Epperson to the boy who has the outstanding FFA project at the school.

Mrs. Epperson, wife of Dr. Epperson, and a native of Canada, went to Toronto by train, to make arrangements for lodging for the boys. One night's lodging was at the college in Toronto where Dr. Epperson took a part of his veterinarian training.
